The Corry Weekly Republican, published by Pratt & Gall, at Corry, contains a good variety of news and miscellaneous matter, is a good family paper and well worthy of the patronage of the community. We have no doubt it has become a necessity to its many subscribers. It has a good circulation and is a valuable advertising medium. The Job Department is well furnished, and good tasty work is done at low prices. In connection with the office is a Book Bindery, where the different kinds of work pertaining to that branch of the business is promptly executed. Card on page 336.

W. W. Thomas & Co., Coal dealers, corner Eighth and State Sts., Erie, Pa., publish a finely displayed advertisement on colored page 341. They keep a large stock of the various grades of Coal constantly on hand, and are prepared at all times to fill orders for the same, from any part of the city, at the market rates. Customers can always rely on the quality of the Coal received from this yard, as they are very particular in the preparation of it for market. Purchase your Coal supply at the yard of this well known firm and you will have no occasion to find fault.

INTRODUCTION.

In presenting to the public the "Gazetteer and Business Directory of Erie County," the publisher desires to return his sincere thanks to all who have so kindly aided him in obtaining the information it contains, and rendered it possible to present it in the brief space of time in which it is essential such works should be completed. Especially are our thanks due to the several editors of the papers published in the county, for the uniform kindness they have evinced in calling public attention to the author's efforts; and to A. J. Sterrett, Commissioners' Clerk, and R. N. Greene, Esq., Waterford, for essential aid in furnishing material for the work. Many others have kindly volunteered their assistance, to all of whom we tender our grateful acknowledgment.

The following works were consulted in its preparation: Miss Laura G. Sanford's "History of Erie Co.;" "Report of the Public Schools, for 1872;" Gordon's "Gazetteer of Penn'a.;" Cooper's "Naval History;" Atkinson's "Directory of Erie;" Spencer's "History of the United States;" and "Directory of Corry."

That errors have occurred in so great a number of names and dates as are here given is probable; and that names have been omitted which should have been inserted is quite certain. We can only say that we have exercised more than ordinary diligence and care in this difficult and complicated feature of book making. Of such as feel aggrieved in consequence of errors or omissions we beg pardon, and ask the indulgence of the reader in marking such as have been observed in the subsequent reading of the proofs, and which are found in the Errata, following the Introduction.

It was designed to give a brief history of all the Church organizations in the county, but owing, in some cases, to the negligence of those who alone were able to give the necessary information, and in others, to the inability of any one to do so, we have been obliged to omit many or indefinitely delay the completion of the work.

We would suggest that our patrons observe and become familiar with the explanations at the commencement of the Directory. The names it embraces, and the information connected therewith, were obtained by actual canvass, and are as correct and reliable as the judgment of those from whom they were solicited render practicable. Each agent is furnished with a map of the township he is expected to canvass, and he is required to pass over every road, and call at every farm house and place of business in the township, in order to obtain the facts from the individuals concerned whenever possible.

The map of the county was engraved with great care by Weed, Parsons & Co., of Albany, and will, it is believed, prove a valuable acquisition to the work.

The Advertisers represent some of the leading business men and firms of this and other counties; and we most cheerfully commend them to the patronage of those under whose observation these pages may come.

While thanking our patrons and friends generally for the liberality and cordiality with which our efforts have been seconded, we take this occasion to express the hope that the information found in these pages will not prove devoid of interest and value, though we are fully conscious that the brief history of the county the scope of the work enables us to give is by no means an exhaustive one, and can only hope that it may prove a nucleus and incentive to future historians, who will be the better able to do full justice to the subject, and leave our work to secure that favor which earnest endeavor ever wins from a discriminating public.

The Erie Observer, Benj. Whitman, editor and proprietor, is a leading Democratic paper, with a confessedly large circulation. It is a large 36 column paper, ably edited, well printed and a faithful exponent of the principles of its party. The office, under the management of Mr. W., has become one of the finest, most complete and prosperous in the State. Its subscription list is large and the patronage extended to the office, we are assured, is of the most desirable character. Unusual care is taken in regard to subscribers; none but those who pay in advance, or who are undoubtedly good, being received, thus ensuring a healthy financial life. The Job Department is well supplied with first-class material and every facility for doing good work. Success to the Observer. Card on page 164.

Howe's Never-Failing Ague Cure and Tonic Bitters, and Howe's Concentrated Syrup, are prepared under the general supervision of Dr. C. B. Howe, the proprietor, at Seneca Falls, N. Y., for ague and fever, and all periodic diseases, rheumatism, paralysis, etc. The "Ague Cure" has produced wonderful cures. The "Syrup," for the blood, liver, skin, digestive and uterine organs, has cured many cases of scrofula, cancer, tumors, goiter, salt rheum, scald-head, and many other diseases too numerous to mention in this place. See card, page 343.

P. J. Williams, Boot and Shoe maker, 3 Spring St., Corry, Pa., publishes a card on page 333. Mr. Williams will make you a pair of Boots that will keep you from getting corned, and give you a sole for understanding that will not soon wear out. Call and leave your measure.

James Sill, Attorney at Law and Real Estate Agent, Erie, Pa., prints a card on marginal lines. He has a choice lot of building lots for sale on easy terms. Young men just starting out in matrimonial life, should avail themselves of his well known experience to secure for themselves and loved ones comfortable homes on easy payments. He also has several fine farms for sale. All legal business entrusted to him receives prompt attention.

Walther & Streuber, 804 State St., Erie, Pa., have an unusually select stock of Dry Goods, Dress Goods, Fancy Goods, Cloths, Hosiery &c., &c., and are prepared to sell as low as any in the market. Their stock is kept up to the demands of their customers, who will give them credit for good taste in the selection of goods and for a thorough knowledge of the wants of their customers. Our patrons will please read their card on top margins, and then call and examine their goods.

Frank S. Heath, wholesale dealer in Hay and Straw, at Corry, Pa., publishes a card on colored page 341. Mr. Heath is successor to the late firm of H. Heath & Son, and is doing an extensive business in the above line. His facilities for business are of a first-class character, and he pays the highest cash price for Hay and Straw all the year around. He warrants every bale and guarantees the weight within 12 pounds. Mr. H. is agent for P. K. Dederick & Co's Hay Presses, which are said to be superior to any in use. He also keeps a good herd of English Berkshire Swine for sale, of which farmers should take notice.

*As it is inconvenient to give the decimal expressing the exact rate per cent., when the remaining fraction is less than one-half, we have made use of the plus sign to indicate that the true rate per cent. is greater than that expressed; and when the remaining fraction is greater than one-half, one has been added to the integer, and the minus sign used to indicate that the true rate per cent. is less than the number by which it is expressed.

Zuschauer Am Erie, (Spectator,) published at Erie by E. E. Sturznickel, has for many years been a recognized and worthy representative of the sturdy German element of Erie and North-western Pennsylvania. Having a large and constantly increasing patronage among a class of people noted for their intelligence, it must necessarily be a valuable advertising medium, to those who wish to reach the German speaking portion of the country. Their facilities for doing Job Printing are such as enable them to turn out first-class work. See card, page 120.

They make a speciality of fine Teas and Coffees, of which they keep a great variety at the lowest prices. Call and see the big Coffee Mill at work, and test their dollar teas.

The Daily is a large 36 column paper, well conducted and having a large and steadily increasing circulation, and the Weekly has for nearly a quarter of a century been a welcome visitor to the homes and firesides of a large number of the residents of this county. The extensive circulation of these widely-read papers make them excellent mediums for advertising, of which fact business men are apparently not ignorant, judging from the appearance of their advertising columns. The facilities for all kinds of Job Printing at this establishment are unsurpassed.

ERIE COUNTY.

THIS COUNTY was formed from Allegheny, March 12th, 1800, and takes its name from the "Eries," a powerful and warlike tribe of Indians who, early in the seventeenth century, occupied the southern shores of the lake now also bearing their name. Its greatest length is about 45 miles, and its greatest breadth about 27, while its western boundary is only about 11 miles long. It contains 720 square miles and is centrally distant 200 miles from Harrisburg. It is the north-west corner county of the State, and is bounded on the north by Lake Erie and New York, on the east by New York and Warren County, on the south by Crawford County, and on the west by Ohio. Its surface is undulating. The summit of the watershed extends through the County from north-east to south-west. A few miles back from the lake, the northern slope is marked by several well defined terraces. The highest ground on the New York State line is about 1,000 feet above the surface of the lake.

Along the shore of Lake Erie and for four or five miles back, the land is excellent for cultivation, bearing wheat and other grains in abundance. The soil on the ridge is generally of an inferior quality. The southern slope is fertile and productive, but is better adapted to grazing than to the growing of wheat.

The County is watered by small streams running north into Lake Erie and south into the Allegheny. The principal streams are Four Mile Creek, which rises in Greene and flows north-west through Harbor Creek and Mill Creek to the lake; Six Mile Creek rises also in Greene and flows centrally through Harbor Creek; Twelve Mile Creek rises in Greenfield and cuts the south-west corner of North East and the north-east corner of Harbor Creek in its course to the lake; Sixteen Mile Creek rises in the southern part of North East and flows in a tortuous course centrally through the township, emptying into the lake about a mile below the borough of North East; Walnut Creek rises in Greene and follows westward along one of the terraces, through Summit and Mill Creek, into Fairview, where it takes a northward course to the lake; Trout Run rises in Fairview, near the north-west corner of McKean, and flows in a north-west course through the township; Elk Creek rises in Waterford, flows through McKean and Fairview, and enters the lake near the western border of Girard; Crooked Creek rises in Girard and flows north-westerly through Springfield; Raccoon Creek rises in Springfield and flows north through that township; Mill Creek rises on the line of Greene and flows west and north through the township of the same name, and the city of Erie, into Presque Isle Bay; Conneaut Creek rises in Crawford County and flows north through Elk Creek and Conneaut, and west along the north border of the latter township, into Ohio; Conneauttee Creek rises in McKean, flows south into Conneauttee Lake, and from thence into Crawford County, where it empties into French Creek; LeBoeuf Creek rises in Venango and flows through Greene and Waterford into LeBoeuf, where it joins French Creek; the West Branch of French Creek rises in Chautauqua County, N. Y., enters this County on the east line of Venango and flows south-west through Amity and Waterford into LeBoeuf, where it is joined by the South Branch, which rises in Concord and flows north and west through that township and Union, into LeBoeuf; from the junction of the two branches its course is west and south into Crawford County, through which it flows and becomes tributary to the Allegheny River at Franklin in Venango County.

Conneauttee Lake, in Washington; LeBoeuf Lake, in Waterford; and Lake Pleasant, in the south-west corner of Venango, are beautiful sheets of water.

According to the census of 1870, there were in the County 279,868 acres of improved land, 126,427 acres of wood land, besides a few thousand acres of other unimproved land. The cash value of farms was $23,991.67; and of farming implements and machinery, $731,537; the product of orchards amounted to $131,481; of market gardens, $37,423; of the forest, $212,915; the value of animals slaughtered and sold for slaughter, $656,260. There were grown 22,490 bushels of spring wheat; 285,825 of winter wheat; 531,584 of corn; 743,106 of oats; 100,014 of barley; 415,989 of potatoes; 1,896,701 pounds of butter, and 165,739 pounds of cheese were made, and 407,440 gallons of milk were sold. The hay crop amounted to 90,551 tons, and 96,821 pounds of maple sugar were made.

Manufactures are carried on extensively in various parts of the County.

The rocks of this County belong to the Portage and Chemung groups of New York, the former occupying the northern portion of the County, and the latter the southern portion. The sandstones of the Portage group are quarried to some extent. Lime has been obtained in limited quantities, chiefly from deposits of shell marl. One of the most peculiar geological features of the County is the numerous springs of carburated hydrogen gas found in various localities. It comes from the shales of the Portage group, and at various places is turned to profitable account. Bog iron ore has been found in Elk Creek, which has been used to a considerable extent. Coal in small quantities has been found, as have also petroleum* and salt, but not in paying quantities. Several mineral springs have been discovered, and one in Erie was, some thirty years ago, improved, and the waters used by invalids for bathing and medicinal purposes with some success, but they have long since fallen into disuse.

The County Seat is located at the city of Erie. The first Court House was erected in 1807, the sum of $2,000 being granted therefor by the State. This Court House, with all the records, was destroyed by fire in 1824. A second building was immediately erected on the same location and plan, and has served the County since until 1853. The early churches were organized and held their services here until they were able to erect more appropriate sanctuaries. The present Court House, erected in 1852, on Sixth Street, contains the offices of the Sheriff, Prothonotary, Register, Commissioners &c. It is an imposing structure of the Roman Corinthian order, and is sixty-one feet front by one hundred and thirty-two in depth; and from the ground to the top of the vane is one hundred and twenty-eight feet. The building was erected at a cost of about $65,000.

The Jail is situated on the south side of Fifth, between Peach and Sassafras Streets.

The new Alms House just erected near the old one, on the farm of 100 acres, three and a half miles west of the city of Erie, is a model structure and an honor to the County. The main building is 188 feet long by 52 feet deep, and four stories high, to which is added a wing 86½ by 29½ feet. The walls are all strongly built of brick. The entire building is heated by steam, and is fueled and lighted by natural gas, from a well sunk on the premises. A full supply of pure soft water is pumped by steam to tanks in the fourth story, from whence it is distributed through the building. Bathing tubs, supplied with hot and cold water, and water closets, are supplied in sufficient numbers for all requirements. The total cost of the building, including heating apparatus, plumbing, cooking utensils, gas well and general furnishing, was $117,939.30. From the report of the Directors of the Poor for the year ending January 1st, 1873, it appears that on the first of January, 1872, the number of inmates was 99, and that during the year 150 were received, 22 died, 48 were discharged, 46 eloped and 9 were bound out. The number remaining in the Alms House, January 1st, 1873, was 124. The mental and physical condition of the inmates during the year 1872, were as follows:—Deaf and dumb 3, palsied 3, insane 12, crippled 21, idiotic 8, fits 4, foolish 16, blind 7, consumption 4, helpless 2, sick 31, lame 31, rheumatic 8, leprosy 1, sore eyes 4, enciente 8, vicious 2, dropsy 4, feeble 3, crazy 5, cramps 1, old age and general infirmity 78, total 249, of whom 129 were native and 120 foreign born. The ages of the inmates were as follows, viz:—From 1 to 10 years, 34; 10 to 20, 24; 20 to 40, 66; 40 to 60, 61; 60 to 80, 49; 80 to 90, 14; 100, 1; total 249, of which 145 were white males, 98 white females, 3 were colored males and 3 colored females. Besides the regular inmates, there were during the year 460 transient paupers who were accommodated at the Alms House with meals and lodging from one day to two weeks.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad enters the County from New York and extends through North East, Harbor Creek, Mill Creek, the city of Erie, Fairview, Girard and Springfield, at a distance of half a mile to a mile and half from the lake. The Philadelphia and Erie Railroad was built on a line that had been pointed out by Nicholas Biddle, in 1830. The Legislature chartered the Sunbury and Erie Company in 1837; two years later a survey was made, but the building of the road was not begun until 1852. It was completed in 1864. In 1861 the name was changed to the "Philadelphia and Erie Railroad," and in the same year the whole line was leased to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for 999 years. The road enters this County from Warren at Corry, and extends through Concord, Union, LeBoeuf, Waterford, Greene, Summit and Mill Creek, into Harbor Creek, where, by an acute angle, it again enters Mill Creek and forms a junction with the L. S. & M. S. R. R. at Erie. The Erie and Pittsburg Railroad enters this County from Crawford and extends through Conneaut, Girard, Fairview and Mill Creek, to Erie, where it forms a junction with the L. S. & M. S. and the Philadelphia and Erie. It also connects with the L. S. & M. S. at Girard. This road is also leased and operated by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The Oil Creek Railroad, completed in 1862, between Titusville and Corry, crosses the township of Concord in this County and connects with the Atlantic and Great Western, the Philadelphia and Erie, and the Buffalo, Corry and Pittsburg Railroads, at Corry. The Buffalo, Corry and Pittsburg Railroad was opened in 1867, enters this County from Chautauqua County, N. Y., and extends through the township of Wayne, to Corry. The Atlantic and Great Western Railway, completed in 1862 through this County, enters at Corry from Warren County, crosses the Philadelphia and Erie at this city, and extends through Concord, Union and LeBoeuf, into Crawford County. The Pennsylvania Petroleum Railway, extending from Erie, south through Mill Creek, Summit, McKean and Washington, and through Crawford County to Titusville, is expected to be completed the present year. All of these roads facilitate travel and the transportation of merchandise and heavy freight, and add largely to the wealth and prosperity of the County.

The Erie Canal Company was incorporated in 1843, and by the construction of the Erie Extension Canal, accomplished the work which united the Ohio and the lakes and which had been talked of for many years previously. The canal cost about four and a half million dollars, and is one hundred and thirty-six miles long. The first boats passed through the canal to Erie, December 5th, 1844. For many years the canal has served a good purpose in affording a water way from the south to the lakes, and no other public work has contributed more largely to the development of Western Pennsylvania and the growth of Erie; but it has now passed into the hands of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, who have deemed it for their interest to discontinue its operation. Many of the locks being in a state of decay and the canal being otherwise out of repair, the Company, perhaps wisely, considered the expenditure of the large sum needed for its repair to be an unprofitable investment, in view of the great competition and more rapid transit afforded by the increasing lines of railroads.

The assessment for taxes is made triennially. The following tabular statement of the last assessment was kindly furnished by A. J. Sterrett, Commissioners' Clerk:—[See following page.

The Newspapers of the County consist of three Daily, eleven Weekly and three Monthly papers. The first newspaper published in the County was

The Mirror, by George Wyeth, at Erie. The first number was dated May 21st, 1808. It was discontinued after two years.

The Northern Sentinel was started at Erie in 1813 by R. J. Curtis, who discontinued it in 1815, expecting to remove to Detroit, but not receiving sufficient encouragement there, he started

The Genius of the Lakes, at Erie. John Morris was associated with him in this enterprise. In 1819 the paper was enlarged and the name changed to

The Phoenix and Erie Reflector. The paper was soon removed to Mayville, N. Y., and was discontinued in 1820.

The Erie Patriot was started in 1818, by Ziba Willis. The next year it was removed to Cleveland, Ohio.

THE ERIE GAZETTE was established January 10, 1820, by Joseph M. Sterrett, and has been published continuously from that time. It is the oldest paper in a large section of country. Mr. Sterrett published it for 45 years. Since his retirement it has been owned by S. A. Davenport, Esq., and by the Gazette Printing Company. All the shares of the said Company were bought, April 28, 1873, by F. A. Crandall, who is now editor and publisher. The paper was Whig until the formation of the Republican party, which it joined at the beginning and of which it has been the recognized and official representative ever since. It has on its books many who have received it from the beginning, and many others who have succeeded their fathers and grandfathers as subscribers.

THE ERIE OBSERVER was established in 1830, and the first number issued on Saturday, the 29th of May, of that year, Thomas B. Barnum, editor. The incentive which gave birth to the enterprise was the rapid growth of the place, and the necessity of an additional newspaper; in a political point of view, to combat the power of "Anti-Masonry," then becoming rampant, and to diffuse true Democratic doctrines among the people of this section. The gentlemen who started it were P. S. V. Hamot, Joshua Beers, Edwin J. Kelso, Robert Cochran, Daniel Dobbins, Smith Jackson and several others. Mr. Barnum was succeeded by Henry S. Harvey, who edited the paper until the spring of 1837. It was then conducted by Thomas Laird until the spring of 1839, when Hiram A. Beebe assumed the editorial chair and continued to occupy it until November, 1840, when the paper went into the hands of J. M. Kuester, and was conducted by him, in connection with W. McKinstry, in 1843. In May, of that year, Messrs. A. P. Durlin and B. F. Sloan purchased the establishment and carried it on under the firm name of Durlin & Sloan, until January 1st, 1856, when the former withdrew, moved to the West and started a journal which was discontinued about the opening of the war. Directly after Mr. Durlin's retirement, Mr. Sloan associated with him Mr. M. M.

Moore, who withdrew January 1st, 1859, after which it was published by Mr. Sloan alone until January 1st, 1861, when he sold to Andrew Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins' connection with the Observer lasted but little more than a year. January 17, 1862, Messrs. Benjamin Whitman and James I. Brecht, became the proprietors, who published it until April 1, 1865, when the former purchased Mr. Brecht's interest. Mr. Whitman has been the sole proprietor of the Observer since the latter date; and with an occasional exception of a few months, has performed all the editorial work on the paper.

The Erie Chronicle was commenced in 1840 by S. Perley. In 1855

The True American, which was commenced in 1853 by Compton & Moore, was merged with the Chronicle, and James Perley and Henry Catlin became the editors.

The Girard Free Press was commenced in 1845 by S. D. Carpenter.

The Girard Express was purchased in Nov. 1854, by T. C. Wheeler and Wm. S. Finch, of L. F. Andrews, and they changed the name to

The Girard Republican, which fell into the possession of S. Perley the following year (1855.)

The Commercial Advertiser was begun in 1846, by J. P. Cochran. In 1852 it went into the hands of A. H. Caughey. About a year and a half later, J. B. Johnson became the purchaser and changed its name to

The Constitution. It subsequently passed into the hands of R. L. White, who also issued for a few months the Daily Bulletin, the first Daily issued in the city, which was discontinued in 1858.

The Herald, a monthly temperance paper, was issued from the Commercial Advertiser office during the year 1852.

The Waterford Dispatch was commenced at Waterford in 1851, by Jas. S. M. Young. In 1856 the paper and office was removed to Erie and the name changed to

The Erie City Dispatch, since when it has passed through some changes and is now issued by the Dispatch Printing Association, (Willard, Redway & Seaman,) as

THE ERIE WEEKLY DISPATCH, which firm also issue THE ERIE MORNING DISPATCH, the only Daily in the city. It was established in 1863.

The Unserer Welt (Our World) — German — was started in 1851, by Carl Benson. A few years later it was changed to the Frei Presse, and was afterwards discontinued.

The ZUSCHAUER AM ERIE (Spectator) was started by Scheufflen. Three years later C. Moeser became proprietor, and in 1861 he was succeeded by Ernest Sturznickle, by whom it is still issued.

The first paper established at Corry was

The Corry City News, by Messrs. Stebbins & Larkins, in 1863, and the first number was issued October 22 of that year. In March 1864, Mr. Stebbins became sole proprietor, and in August he sold to Rev. Major Colegrove, who soon disposed of the office to C. G. Griffey, who changed the name to

The Corry Express. After a few weeks he sold to J. H. Baldwin, who changed the name to

The Petroleum Telegraph. Early in 1865 he sold an interest to J. A. Pain, and in the fall of that year

The Corry Daily Telegraph was started, which was discontinued after about a year. In 1866 Mr. Pain became sole proprietor. The Weekly was continued by Mr. Pain until 1868, when he changed the name to

THE CORRY TELEGRAPH, under which name it is still issued by Mr. Pain, who also revived the Daily as THE CORRY DAILY BLADE.

The Union Mills Star was started at Union Mills in 1866, and was removed to Corry in November 1867, and the name changed to

THE CORRY WEEKLY REPUBLICAN. Horace G. Pratt was the proprietor. He associated with him Dan. Scott and W. B. Galleher, both of whom soon after withdrew, and in January 1869, he sold a half interest to Henry C. Eddy. It is now published by Messrs. Pratt & Gail.

The other efforts at journalizing have been the Morning Review, Saturday Review, Commercial Advertiser, Corry Democratic Press, Corry Democrat, Daily Itemizer, Corry Whetstone, Temperance Vindicator, Corry Telegraph and Supplement, Corry Daily Republican, People's Monthly, Daily Drummer Boy, Pennock's Herald of Fashion, and Wright's Saponifier.

The Times was issued at Edinboro in 1855-6, by H. N. F. Lewis. In the latter year he moved it to Waterford and changed the name to

The Waterford Times. In 1857 he sold to Amos Judson, who conducted the paper until the beginning of 1859, when it was discontinued. The press and fixtures were burned in 1865.

The Union Times was established at Union City in 1870, by Troup & Locke. It subsequently was issued by Robert Troup alone, and in August 1873, Messrs. Persons & Thompson became the proprietors, who now issue it as THE UNION CITY WEEKLY TIMES.

THE ERIE LEUCHTTHURM (Lighthouse) was established in 1869. Messrs. Willard, Redway & Cook, and R. Schmitz, have been publishers. H. Merhoff is the present proprietor.

The North East Guard was started at North East in February 1855, by J. J. Barker. It was discontinued the same year.

The North East Herald was commenced in August 1867, by S. O. Hayward, who continued it about a year.

The North East Star was commenced Sept. 26, 1868, by Brainard & Cushman. Early in 1869 L. B. Cushman purchased Brainard's interest, and the paper was conducted by Cushman Bros. In March 1863, it was enlarged and its name changed to

THE SUN. A branch office was opened in Erie, and C. C. Cushman was admitted to the firm.

THE COSMOPOLITE was established in 1868, at Girard, by J. Bender & Bro. It is now published by Jacob Bender.

The Province of Pennsylvania, as granted to William Penn, included but about five or six miles of the shores of Lake Erie upon the extreme west, as was determined in 1786-7 by the survey made under Andrew Ellicot, who was appointed a commissioner for that purpose by the State of Pennsylvania, and James Clinton and Simeon DeWitt, of the State of New York. In 1789 the Assembly confirmed the acts of the Commissioners and established the line as run by them on the forty-third degree of north latitude, as the boundary line between the two States from the Delaware River westward. As the Indians were recognized as the owners of the soil, the whole was purchased from them by different treaties. It was subsequently discovered that in the purchases made by New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Virginia, the small triangle now included in Erie County, north of the forty-third degree of latitude, had not been covered. The State then bought the Indians' title for the sum of twelve hundred pounds, and for that consideration, Cornplanter and other Chiefs of the Six Nations, on the 9th of January, 1789, signed a deed ceding the Presque'ile lands to the United States, to be vested in the State of Pennsylvania. In 1791, the Governor completed the purchase from the United States for the consideration of $151,640.25, which was paid in Continental certificates of various descriptions. The deed of confirmation from the United States is dated March 3d, 1792. The tract contained 202,187 acres. The acquisition of this territory gave to Pennsylvania one of the best harbors on the great lakes.

Settlement was commenced at Erie in the spring of 1795 by Col. Seth Reed, a native of Rhode Island, who had previously moved to Ontario County, New York, where he owned a large tract of land. This he disposed of before removing with his family to Erie. Col. Reed brought with him, besides his wife and sons, Manning and John Charles, James Baggs and Giles Sisson. His son, Rufus Seth, came a few months later, and the following year, George and the daughters, Mrs. T. Rees and Mrs. J. Fairbank came. Col. Reed died during the second year after his arrival, at the age of fifty-three years.

Wm. Miles settled in Concord in June 1795. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and, in 1785, with Mr. David Watts, was appointed by the Governor to survey the Tenth Donation Tract. When Mr. Miles settled in 1795, his wife and children accompanied him, and also Mr. Wm. Cook with his family. Other settlers came in rapidly, being induced by the liberal offers of the Pennsylvania Population Co. and other parties interested in opening the lands to settlement.

In 1748, when peace was restored in Europe, the boundaries between the French and English possessions in America were undefined. The French, by reason of their discovery of the St. Lawrence and Mississippi, claimed the territory watered by those streams, and in 1749, Celeron de Bienville, with a company of three hundred men, was sent out by the Governor of Canada to make peace among the tribes of Indians and to renew the French possession of the country. He distributed presents to the Indians, reminded them of their former friendship, and warned them not to trade with the English. He also nailed leaden plates to the trees and buried them in the earth at the confluence of the Ohio and its tributaries. The following is a literal translation of one of the plates found at Venango, (Franklin, in Venango County):—

“In the year 1749, in the reign of Lewis XV., King of France, we, Celeron, commandant of a detachment by Monsieur the Marquis of Galissoniere, commander-in-chief of New France, to establish tranquility in certain villages of these cantons, have buried this plate at the confluence of Toradakoin, this 29th of July, near the River Ohio, otherwise beautiful river, as a monument of renewal of possession which we have taken of the said river, inasmuch as the preceding Kings of France have enjoyed this possession and maintained it by their arms and by treaties, especially by those of Ryswick Utrecht, and Aix-la-Chapelle.”

With good reason, the Indians regarded these plates with distrust, and said “they mean to steal our country from us,” a suspicion which would seem to be well grounded, for within a few years the French took unceremonious possession of their best grounds and locations for trading posts and fortifications.

England's claim to this region was founded on a grant of King James the First, in 1606, and confirmed in 1620, to divers of his subjects, of all the countries between north latitude 48 degrees and 34 degrees, and westward from the Atlantic Ocean to the South Sea. Purchases of western lands from the Six Nations had also been made by commissioners from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, which also gave England an additional claim. This purchase was effected by a treaty held at Lancaster in 1744. About 1751 the French became aware that they would encounter difficulties in maintaining their position in New France, and took measures to meet them. Early in 1753, the French sent forces from Montreal to erect other fortifications, to make good their claim by force of arms if they met with opposition, and to oblige all English subjects to evacuate. From the deposition of Stephen Coffin before Wm. Johnson, of New York, Jan. 10, 1754, which appears in the Colonial History of the State of N. Y., Vol. VI, p. 835, the following narrative of this expedition and the building of Forts Presque'île and LeBoeuf, is given.

It appears that Coffin, a New Englander, was made a prisoner at Menis by the French and Indians under Major Noble, in 1747; and was kept as such several years. In 1753 he accompanied the detachment of French, numbering three hundred men, under Mons'r Babeer, as a soldier, on an expedition to 'Belle Riviere or Ohio.' They arrived at Chadokoin, (now Portland, Chautauqua Co.,) in April of that year, by water, "when they were ordered to fell Timber and prepare it for building a Fort there, according to the Governor's instructions; but Mons. Morang coming up with 500 men and 20 Indians put a stop to the erecting of a Fort at that place, by reason of his not liking the situation and the River of Chadokoins being too shallow to carry any craft with provisions &c. to Belle Rivier. * * * There arose a warm debate between Messieurs Babeer and Morang thereon, the first insisting on building a Fort there, agreeable to his instructions, otherwise on Morang giving him an instrument in writing to satisfy the Governor on that point, which Morang did, and then ordered Mons. Mercie, who was both commissary and engineer to go along said lake (Erie) and look for a good situation; which he found and returned in three days, it being fifteen leagues to the south-west of Chadokoin; they were then all ordered to repair thither; * * * They fell to work and built a square Fort of Chestnut Logs squared and lapped over each other to the height of fifteen feet. It is about 120 feet square, a log house in each square, a gate to the southward and another to the northward, not one port-hole cut in any part of it; when finished they called it Fort la Briske Isle." A wagon road was cut twenty-one miles, to the River Aux Boeuf, where another fort was built, (at Waterford,) and a third fort was commenced at "a place called by the Indians Ganagarah'hare, on the bank of Belle Riviere, where the River

Aux Boeuf empties into it;" but the latter, in consequence of the season being too far advanced, was not completed, and the party set out on their return. Before their departure, however, Morang received instructions "to make all possible preparations against the spring of the year to build two forts at Chadokoin one of them by Lake Erie, the other at the end of the carrying place at Lake Chadokoin; (Chautauqua) which carrying place is fifteen miles from one Lake to the other." On the completion of the "Fort la Riviere Aux Boeuff," three hundred men were left to garrison both forts and get out timber for the construction of other forts, while the rest of the party returned to Canada for the winter season. A party consisting of four hundred and forty men, with twenty-two batteaux carrying twenty men easily, under command of Capt. Deman, started Oct. 28th, 1753, the remainder, seven hundred and sixty in number, following in a few days. Deman's party arrived at Chadokoin the 30th, where they staid four days, during which time Mons. Peon, with two hundred men, cut a wagon road from Lake Erie to Lake Chadokoin, a distance of 15 miles. On the 3d of November they left for Niagara, where they arrived on the 8th.

On the 30th of Oct. 1753, Gen. Washington, then but a youth, was sent by Gov. Dinwiddie of Virginia, to gain the friendship of the Indians in the Ohio Valley, and to remonstrate against the occupancy of the country by the French. Accompanying him were Gist, the pioneer, VanBraem, a retired soldier, who had a knowledge of French, and John Davison, Indian interpreter. At Logtown, an escort of friendly Indians was added to their company, when they proceeded to Venango and to Fort LaBoeuf. The French officers gave Washington little satisfaction. They entertained him at Fort LaBoeuf several days, and he had an opportunity to inspect the fort and the troops. The French, however, treated the Indians with much flattery, and supplied them well with liquor, hoping to control their friendship. In this however they were unsuccessful. After a sojourn of seven days, Washington left Fort LaBoeuf and returned to Franklin. From there he visited other French military posts on the Ohio. In 1757 M. Chauvignerie, Jr., aged seventeen, a French prisoner, testified before a justice of the peace, that Fort La Boeuf was commanded by his uncle, Monsieur de Verge, an ensign of foot. There was no officer there of a higher grade. There were from eight hundred to a thousand men between that fort and Fort Presqu'ile, one hundred and fifty were regulars, and the rest were Canadian laborers who worked at the forts and at boat building. There were no settlements or improvements near the forts. In the summer of 1754 Fort Niagara was besieged by the English under Gen. Prideaux. Four days before the conquest, the general had been killed by the bursting of a cannon, and the command devolved on Sir William Johnson, who carried out the plan with such judgment and vigor that the French were completely routed. The news of this defeat spread consternation among the western forts. Sir William sent letters by some of the Indians, notifying the commanders of Forts Venango, Presque'ile and LaBoeuf, that they too must be given up. The forces at these forts hastily sent away what movables they could carry, and within a week they had evacuated the forts, and by batteaux made their way to Detroit. In 1760 the Government sent out Major Rodgers to take formal possession for the English of the forts upon the lake. In Feb. 1763, a treaty of peace was signed and ratified by the two powers at Paris. It was in this same year that a wide-spread combination among the Indians, led to fearful ravages on their part. The Delawares and Shawanese, now occupying the banks of the Muskingum, Sciote and Miami, provoked by being crowded rudely by the settlers fast pouring across the Alleghanies, and perhaps incited by the artful representation of French fur traders, made a simultaneous attack in June along the whole frontier of Pennsylvania and Virginia. The noted Pontiac, a chief of the Ottawas, and a man of superior ability, was the moving spirit of this confederation, and it tasked to the utmost the powerful influence of Sir William Johnson to keep the Six Nations from joining Pontiac against the white men. The English traders were plundered and slain, and the posts between the Ohio and Lake Erie were surprised and taken. Of the capture of Fort Presqu'ile, Miss Sanford, in her 'History of Erie County,' quotes among other versions, that of Mr. H. L. Harvey, a former editor of the Erie Observer, and as he gathered his information from Capt. D. Dobbins of the revenue service, who frequently talked with one of the survivors, and from information derived from other sources, the narrative has the appearance of truth. He says:

"The troops retired to their quarters to procure their morning repast; some had already finished, and were sauntering about the fortress or upon the shore of the lake. All were joyous in holiday attire, and dreaming of naught but the pleasure of the occasion. A knock was heard at the gate, and three Indians were announced, in hunting garb, desiring an interview with the Commander. Their tale was soon told. They said they belonged to a hunting party, who had started for Niagara with a lot of furs; that their canoes were bad, and they would prefer disposing of them here, if they could do so to advantage, and return, rather than go farther; that their party were encamped by a small stream west of the fort about a mile, where they had landed the previous night, and where they wished the Commander to go and examine their peltries, as it was difficult to bring them, and they wished to embark where they were if they did not trade. The Commander, accompanied by a clerk, left the fort with the Indians, charging his Lieutenant that none should leave the fort, and none be admitted until his return. Well would it probably have been had this order been obeyed. After the lapse of sufficient time for the Captain to visit the encampment of the Indians and return, a party of the latter, variously estimated—probably one hundred and fifty—advanced towards the fort, bearing upon their backs what appeared to be large packs of furs, which they informed the Lieutenant the Captain had purchased and ordered to be deposited in the fort. The stratagem succeeded; when the party were all within the fort, it was the work of an instant to throw off their packs and the short cloaks which covered their weapons, the whole being fastened by one loop and button at the neck. Resistance at this time was useless, and the work of death was as rapid as savage strength and weapons could make it. The shortened rifles, which had been sawed off for the purpose of concealing them under their cloaks and in the packs of furs, were at once discharged and the tomahawk and knife completed their work. The history of savage warfare presents not a scene of more heartless and blood-thirsty vengeance than was exhibited on this occasion. The few who were taken prisoners in the fort were doomed to the various tortures devised by savage ingenuity, and all but two, who awoke to celebrate that day, had passed to the eternal world. Of these, one was a soldier who had gone into the woods near the fort and on his return observing a party of Indians dragging away some prisoners, escaped, and immediately proceeded to Niagara; the other was a soldier's wife who had taken shelter in a small stone house, at the mouth of the creek, used as a wash house. Here she remained unobserved until near night of the fatal day, when she was made their prisoner, but was ultimately ransomed and restored to civilized life. She was afterward married and settled in Canada, where she resided at the commencement of the present century."

It was she who narrated the circumstances to Capt. Dobbins.

Fort LeBoeuf was about the same time attacked in the night by a large body of Indians who fired the block house. Instead of being burned, as the Indians supposed, the Ensign and his seven remaining men effected their escape through a secret underground passage, having its outlet in the direction of the swamp adjoining LaBoeuf Lake. According to tradition, only one of those who thus escaped, reached a civilized settlement.

In 1764, General Gage, the new Commander-in-Chief in America, called for troops to aid in putting an end to this war with the Indians. Two expeditions were sent out, one by way of Pittsburg, and the other along the lakes. The Indians finding themselves thus vigorously pressed, deemed it expedient soon after, to consent to terms of peace.

During the Revolution, the British held possession of the lake regions, and after the treaty of peace had been signed and ratified, they did not immediately evacuate the forts along that frontier, for in Dec. 1785, John Adams, Minister to London, writes to Lord Carmathen, English Secretary of State: "Although a period of three years has elapsed since the signature of the preliminary treaty, and more than two years since the definitive treaty, the posts of Oswegatchy, Oswego, Niagara, Presqu'île, Sandusky, Detroit, Mackinaw, with others not necessary particularly to enumerate, and a considerable territory around each of them, all within the incontestable limits of the United States, are still held by British garrisons, to the loss and injury of the United States." And he further, in the name and on behalf of the United States, required "that all His Majesty's armies and garrisons be forthwith withdrawn from the said United States, from all and every of the posts and fortresses before enumerated, and from every port, place and harbor, within the territory of the said United States, according to the true intention of the treaties." Owing however to failure on our part to carry out all the articles of the treaty, the British did not give up possession of the frontier until several years afterwards.

In the war of 1812-14, the American army were entirely unsuccessful during the first year. In the attempt to conquer Upper Canada, Hull had suffered defeat at Detroit, and so did VanRensselaer at Niagara, thus leaving the British in full possession of Lake Erie. The only armed vessel on the lake possessed by the Americans was the Adams, a brig of 150 tons, which was also captured by the British, who had a squadron of five vessels. These reverses urged the necessity of an armed force upon the lake to co-operate with General Harrison, who was in command of the North-western Army. How this force was brought into action, and its glorious results, is graphically described by J. Fennimore Cooper, (who, by the way, was a midshipman on the Adams, captured, as before mentioned, by the British,) in his "History of the Navy of the United States," as follows :

"In the course of the winter of 1812-13, Captain O. H. Perry, then a young master and commander at the head of the flotilla of gun-boats, at Newport, Rhode Island, finding no immediate prospect of getting to sea in a sloop of war, volunteered for the lake service. Captain Perry brought on with him a number of officers, and a few men, and Commodore Chauncey gladly availed himself of the presence of an officer of his rank, known spirit, and zeal, to send him on the upper lakes, in command, where he arrived in the course of the winter. From this time, until the navigation opened, Captain Perry was actively employed, under all the embarrassments of his frontier position, in organizing and creating a force, with which he might contend with the enemy for the mastery of those important waters. Two large brigs, to mount 20 guns each, were laid down at Presque Isle, Erie, and a few gun-vessels, or schooners, were also commenced. The spring passed in procuring guns, shot, and other supplies; and, as circumstances allowed, a draft of men would arrive from below, to aid in equipping the different vessels. As soon as the squadron of Commodore Chauncey appeared off the mouth of Niagara, Captain Perry, with some of his officers, went to join it, and the former was efficiently employed in superintending the disembarkation of the troops, as has already been related. The fall of Fort George produced that of Fort Erie, when the whole of the Niagara frontier came under the control of the American army.

"Captain Perry now repaired to his own command, and with infinite labor he succeeded in getting the vessels that had so long been detained in the Niagara, by the enemy's batteries, out of the river. This important service was effected by the 12th of June, and preparations were immediately commenced for appearing on the lake. These vessels consisted of the brig, Caledonia, (a prize,) and the schooners Catharine, Ohio, and Amelia; with the sloop Contractor. The Catharine was named the Somers, the Amelia the Tigress, and the Contractor the Trippe. At this time the enemy had a cruising force under the orders of Captain Finnis, which consisted of the Queen Charlotte, a ship of between three and four hundred tons, and mounting 17 guns; the Lady Prevost, a fine warlike schooner, of about two hundred tons, that mounted 13 guns; the brig Hunter, a vessel a little smaller, of 10 guns, and three or four lighter cruisers. He was also building at Malden, a ship of near five hundred tons measurement, that was to mount 19 guns, and which was subsequently called the Detroit.

"It was near the middle of June before Captain Perry was ready to sail from the outlet of Lake Erie, for Presque Isle. There being no intention to engage the enemy, and little dread of meeting him in so short a run, as she came in sight of her port each vessel made the best of her way. The enemy had chosen this moment to look into Presque Isle, and both squadrons were in view from the shore, at the same time, though, fortunately for the Americans, the English did not get a sight of them, until they were too near the land to be intercepted. As the last vessel got in, the enemy hove in sight, in the offing.

"The two brigs laid down in the winter, under the directions of Commodore Chauncey, had been launched towards the close of May, and were now in a state of forwardness. They were called the Lawrence and the Niagara. The schooners also were in the water, and Captain Perry, having all his vessels in one port, employed himself in getting them ready for service, as fast as possible. Still various stores were wanting. There was a great deficiency of men, particularly of seamen, and Captain Perry, and Mr. D. Turner, were, as yet, the only commissioned sea-officers on the lake. The latter, moreover, was quite young in years as well as in rank.

"Presque Isle, or as the place is now called, Erie, was a good and spacious harbor; but it had a bar on which there was less than seven feet of water. This bar, which had hitherto answered the purposes of a fortification, now offered a serious obstruction to getting the brigs on the lake. It lay about half a mile outside, and offered great advantages to the enemy for attacking the Americans while employed in passing it. So sensible was Captain Perry of this disadvantage, that he adopted the utmost secrecy in order to conceal his intentions, for it was known that the enemy had spies closely watching his movements.

"Captain Barclay had lately superceded Captain Finnis in the command of the English force, and for near a week he had been blockading the American vessels, evidently with an intention to prevent their getting out, it being known that this bar could be crossed only in smooth water. On Friday, the 2d of August, he suddenly disappeared in the northern board.

"The next day but one was Sunday, and the officers were ashore seeking the customary relaxation. Without any appearances of unusual preparation, Captain Perry privately gave the order to repair on board the respective vessels and to drop down to the bar. This command was immediately obeyed; and at about 2 P. M., the Lawrence had been towed to the point where the deepest water was to be found. Her guns were whipped out, loaded and shotted as they were, and landed on the beach; two large scows, prepared for the purpose, were hauled alongside, and the work of lifting the brig proceeded as fast as possible. Pieces of massive timber had been run through the forward and after ports, and when the scows were sunk to the water's edge, the ends of the timbers were blocked up, supported by these floating foundations. The plugs were now put in the scows, and the water was pumped out of them. By this process, the brig was lifted quite two feet, though, when she got on the bar, it was found that she still drew too much water. It became necessary, in consequence, to come-up every thing, to sink the scows anew, and to block up the timbers afresh. This duty occupied the night.

"The schooners had crossed the bar, and were moored outside, and preparations were hurriedly made to receive an attack. About 8 A. M., the enemy re-appeared. At this time, the Lawrence was just passing the bar. A distant, short, and harmless cannonade ensued, though it had the effect to keep the enemy from running in. As soon as the Lawrence was in deep water, her guns were hoisted in, manned as fast as mounted, and the brig's broadside was sprung to bear on the English squadron. Fortunately, the Niagara crossed on the first trial; and before night, all the vessels were as ready for service, as circumstances would then allow. The enemy remained with his topsails to the mast half an hour; sullenly reconnoitering; he then filled, and went up the lake under a press of canvass.

"This occurred on the 4th of August, and on the 5th, Captain Perry sailed in quest of the enemy, having received on board a number of soldiers and volunteers. He ran off Long Point, and sweeping the Canada shore for some distance, returned to Erie on the 8th. Taking in some supplies, he was about to proceed up the lake again, when intelligence arrived that a party sent from below, under Lieutenant Elliott, was at Cattaraugus, on its way to join the squadron. A vessel was immediately sent for this acceptable reinforcement. Shortly after its arrival, the commissions that had been made out some time previously, were received from below. By these changes, Mr. Elliott became a master and commander, and Messrs. Holdup, Packett, Yarnall, Edwards, and Conklin, were raised to the rank of lieutenants. Most of these gentlemen, however, had been acting for some months.

"The American squadron now consisted of the Lawrence 20, Captain Perry; Niagara 20, Captain Elliott; Caledonia 3, Mr. M'Grath, a purser; Ariel 4, Lieutenant Packett; Trippe 1, Lieutenant Smith; Tigress 1, Lieutenant Conklin; Somers 2, Mr. Alney; Scorpion 2, Mr. Champlin; Ohio 1, Mr. Dobbins; and Porcupine 1, Mr. Senatt. On the 18th of August, this force sailed from Erie, and off Sandusky, a few days later, it chased, and was near capturing one of the enemy's schooners.

"The squadron cruised for several days, near the entrance of the strait, when Captain Perry was taken ill with the fever peculiar to these waters, and shortly after the vessels went into Put-in Bay, a harbor, among some islands that lay at no great distance.

"Here a few changes occurred, Mr. Smith going to the Niagara, and Mr. Holdup to the Trippe; Mr. M'Grath went also to the Niagara, and Mr. Turner took command of the Caledonia. The Ohio was sent down the lake on duty.

"While in port, on this occasion, Captain Perry contemplated an attack on the enemy's vessels, by means of boats; and orders were issued, accordingly, to drill the people with muffled oars.

"The squadron was still lying at Put-in Bay on the morning of the 10th of September, when, at daylight, the enemy's ships were discovered in the N. W. from the mast-head of the Lawrence. A signal was immediately made for all the vessels to get under way. The wind was light at S. W., and there was no mode of obtaining the weather-gage of the enemy, a very important measure with the peculiar armament of the largest of the American vessels, but by beating around some small islands that lay in the way. It being thought there was not sufficient time for this, though the boats were got ahead to tow, a signal was about to be made for the vessels to ware, and to pass to leeward of the islands, with an intention of giving the enemy this great advantage, when the wind shifted to S. E. By this change the American squadron was enabled to pass in the desired direction, and to gain the wind. When he perceived the American vessels clearing the land, or about 10 A. M., the enemy hove-to, in a line, with his ships' heads to the southward and westward. At this time the two squadrons were about three leagues asunder, the breeze being still at S. E., and sufficient to work with. After standing down, until about a league from the English, where a better view was got of the manner in which the enemy had formed his line, the leading vessels of his own squadron being within hail, Captain Perry communicated a new order of attack. It had been expected that the Queen Charlotte, the second of the English vessels, in regard to force, would be at the head of their line, and the Niagara had been destined to lead in, and to lie against her, Captain Perry having reserved for himself a commander's privilege of engaging the principal vessel of the opposing squadron; but it now appearing that the anticipated arrangement had not been made, the plan was promptly altered. Captain Barclay had formed his line with the Chippeway,

Mr Campbell, armed with one gun on a pivot, in the van; the Detroit, his own vessel, next; and the Hunter, Lieutenant Bignall; Queen Charlotte, Captain Finnis; Lady Prevost, Lieutenant Commandant Buchan; and Little Belt astern, in the order named. To oppose this line, the Ariel, of four long twelves, was stationed in the van, and the Scorpion, of one long and one short gun on circles, next her. The Lawrence, Captain Perry, came next; the two schooners just mentioned keeping on her weather bow, having no quarters. The Caledonia, Lieutenant Turner, was the next astern, and the Niagara, Captain Elliott, was placed next to the Caledonia. These vessels were all up at the time, but the other light craft were more or less distant, each endeavoring to get into her berth. The order of battle for the remaining vessels, directed the Tigress to fall in astern of the Niagara, the Somers next, and then the Porupine and Trippe, in the order named.

"By this time the wind had got to be very light, but the leading vessels were all in their stations, and the remainder were endeavoring to get in as fast as possible. The English vessels presented a very gallant array, and their appearance was beautiful and imposing. Their line was compact, with the heads of the vessels still to the southward and westward; their ensigns were just opening to the air; the vessels were freshly painted, and their canvass was new and perfect. The American line was more straggling. The order of battle required them to form within half a cable's length of each other, but the schooners astern could not close with the vessels ahead, which sailed faster, and had more light canvass, until some considerable time had elapsed.

"A few minutes before twelve, the Detroit threw a twenty-four-pound shot at the Lawrence, then on her weather quarter, distant between one and two miles. Captain Perry now passed an order by trumpet, through the vessels astern, for the line to close to the prescribed order; and soon after, the Scorpion was hailed, and directed to begin with her long gun. At this moment, the American vessels in line were edging down upon the English, those in front being necessarily nearer to the enemy than those more astern, with the exception of the Ariel and Scorpion, which two schooners had been ordered to keep well to windward of the Lawrence. As the Detroit had an armament of long guns, Captain Barclay manifested his judgment in commencing the action in this manner; and in a short time, the firing between that ship, the Lawrence, and the two schooners at the head of the American line, got to be very animated. The Lawrence now showed a signal for the squadron to close, each vessel in her station, as previously designated. A few minutes later the vessels astern began to fire, and the action became general but distant. The Lawrence, however, appeared to be the principal aim of the enemy, and before the firing had lasted any material time, the Detroit, Hunter, and Queen Charlotte, were directing most of their efforts against her. The American brig endeavored to close, and did not succeed in getting within reach of canister, though not without suffering materially, as she fanned down upon the enemy. At this time, the support of the two schooners ahead, which were well commanded and fought, was of the greatest moment to her; for the vessels astern, though in a line, could be of little use in diverting the fire, on account of their positions and the distance. After the firing had lasted some time, the Niagara hailed the Caledonia, and directed the latter to make room for the former to pass ahead. Mr. Turner put his helm up in the most dashing manner, and continued to near the enemy, until he was closer to his line, perhaps, than the commanding vessel; keeping up as warm a fire as his small armament would allow. The Niagara now became the vessel next astern of the Lawrence.

"The cannonade had the usual effect of deadening the wind, and for two hours there was very little air. During all this time, the weight of the enemy's fire was directed against the Lawrence; the Queen Charlotte having filled, passed the Hunter, and closed with the Detroit, where she kept up a destructive cannonading on this devoted vessel. These united attacks dismantled the American brig, besides producing great slaughter on board her. At the end of two hours and a half, agreeably to the report of Captain Perry, the enemy having filled, and the wind increasing, the two squadrons drew slowly ahead, the Lawrence necessarily falling astern and partially out of the combat. At this moment the Niagara passed to the southward and westward, a short distance to windward of the Lawrence, steering for the head of the enemy's line, and the Caledonia followed to leeward.

"The vessels astern had not been idle, but, by dint of sweeping and sailing, they had all got within reach of their guns, and had been gradually closing, though not in the prescribed order. The rear of the line would seem to have inclined down towards the enemy, bringing the Trippe, Lieutenant Holdup, so near the Caledonia, that the latter sent a boat to her for a supply of cartridges.

"Captain Perry, finding himself in a vessel that had been rendered nearly useless by the injuries she had received, and which was dropping out of the combat, got into his boat, and pulled after the Niagara, on board of which he arrived at half-past two. Soon after the colors of the Lawrence were hauled down, that vessel being literally a wreck.

"After a short consultation between Captains Perry and Elliott, the latter volunteered to take the boat of the former, and to proceed and bring the small vessels astern, which were already briskly engaged, into still closer action. This proposal being accepted, Captain Elliott pulled down the line, passing within hail of all the small vessels astern, directing them to close within half pistol-shot of the enemy, and to throw in grape and canister, as soon as they could get the desired positions. He then repaired on board the Somers, and took charge of that schooner in person.

"When the enemy saw the colors of the Lawrence come down, he confidently believed that he had gained the day. His men appeared over the bulwarks of the different vessels and gave three cheers. For a few minutes, indeed, there appears to have been, as if by common consent, nearly a general cessation in the firing, during which both parties were preparing for a desperate and final effort. The wind had freshened, and the position of the Niagara, which brig was now abeam of the leading English vessel, was commanding; while the gun-vessels astern, in consequence of the increasing breeze, were enabled to close very fast.

"At 45 minutes past 2, or when time had been given to the gun-vessels to receive the order mentioned, Captain Perry showed the signal from the Niagara, for close action, and immediately bore up, under his foresail, topsail, and topgallantsail. As the American vessels hoisted their answering flags, this order was received with three cheers, and it was obeyed with alacrity and spirit. The enemy had attempted to ware round, to get fresh broadsides to bear, in doing which his line got into confusion, and the two ships for a short time, were foul of each other, while the Lady Prevost had so far shifted her berth, as to be both to the westward and to the leeward of the Detroit. At this critical moment, the Niagara came steadily down, within half pistol-shot of the enemy, standing between the Chippeway and the Lady Prevost, on one side, and the Detroit, Queen Charlotte and Hunter on the other. In passing she poured in her broadsides, starboard and larboard, ranged ahead of the ships, luffed athwart their bows, and continued giving a close and deadly fire. The shrieks from the Detroit, proclaimed that the tide of battle had turned. At the same moment, the gun-vessels and Caledonia were throwing in close discharges of grape and canister astern. A conflict so fearfully close, and so deadly, was necessarily short. In fifteen or twenty minutes after the Niagara bore up, a hail was passed among the small vessels, to say that the enemy had struck, and an officer of the Queen Charlotte appeared on the taffrail of that ship, waving a white handkerchief, bent to a boarding-pike.

"As soon as the smoke cleared away, the two squadrons were found partly intermingled. The Niagara lay to leeward of the Detroit, Queen Charlotte and Hunter; and the Caledonia, with one or two of the gun-vessels, was between the latter and the Lady Prevost. On board the Niagara, the signal for close action was still abroad, while the small vessels were sternly wearing their answering flags. The Little Belt and Chippeway were endeavoring to escape to leeward, but they were shortly after brought-to by the Scorpion and Trippe; while the Lawrence was still lying astern and to windward, with the American colors again flying. The battle had commenced about noon, and it terminated at 3, with the exception of a few shots fired at the two vessels that attempted to escape, which were not overtaken until an hour later.

"In this decisive action, so far as their people were concerned, the two squadrons suffered in nearly an equal degree, the manner in which the Lawrence was cut up, being almost without an example in naval warfare. It is understood that when Captain Perry left her, she had but one gun on her starboard side, or that on which she was engaged, which could be used, and that gallant officer is said to have aided in firing it in person the last time it was discharged. Of her crew, 22 were killed, and 61 were wounded, most of the latter severely. When Captain Perry left her, taking with him his own brother and six of his people, there remained on board but 14 sound men. The Niagara had 2 killed, and 25 wounded, or about one-fourth of all at quarters. This was the official report; but, according to the statement of her surgeon, her loss was 5 killed, and 27 wounded. The other vessels suffered relatively less. The Caledonia, Lieutenant Turner, though carried into the hottest of the action, and entirely without quarters, had 3 men wounded; the Trippe, Lieutenant Holdup, which, for some time, was quite as closely engaged, and was equally without quarters, had 2 men wounded; the Somers, Mr. Almy, the same; The Ariel, Lieutenant Packett, had 1 man killed, and 3 wounded; the Scorpion, Mr. Champlin, had two killed, one of whom was a midshipman; the Tigress, Lieutenant Conklin, and Porcupine, Mr. Senatt, had no one hurt. The total loss of the squadron was 27 killed, and 96 wounded, or altogether 123 men; of whom 12 were quarter deck officers. More than a hundred men were unfit for duty, among the different vessels, previously to the action, cholera morbus and dysentery prevailing in the squadron. Captain Perry himself was laboring under debility, from a recent attack of the lake fever, and could hardly be said to be in a proper condition for service, when he met the enemy; a circumstance that greatly enhances the estimate of his personal exertions on this memorable occasion. Among the Americans slain, were Lieutenant Brooks, the commanding marine officer, and Messrs. Laub and Clark, midshipmen, and among the wounded, Messrs. Yarnall and Forrest, the first and second lieutenants of the Lawrence, Mr. Taylor, her master, Mr. Hambleton, her purser, and Messrs. Swartwout and Claxton, two of her midshipmen. Mr. Edwards, second lieutenant of the Niagara, and Mr. Cummings, one of her midshipmen, were also wounded.

"For two hours the weight of the enemy's fire had been thrown into the Lawrence; and the water being perfectly smooth, his long guns had committed great havoc, before the carronades of the American vessels could be made available. For much of this period, it is believed that the efforts of the enemy were little diverted, except by the fire of the two leading schooners, a gun of one of which (the Ariel) had early burst, the two long guns of the large brigs, and the two long guns of the Caledonia. Although the enemy undoubtedly suffered by this fire, it was not directed at a single object, as was the case with that of the English, who appeared to think that by destroying the American commanding vessel they would conquer. It is true that carronades were used on both sides, at an earlier stage of the action than that mentioned, but there is good reason for thinking that they did but little execution for the first hour. When they did tell, the Lawrence, the vessel nearest the enemy, if the Caledonia be excepted, necessarily became their object, and, by this time, the efficiency of her own battery was much lessened. As a consequence of these peculiar circumstances, her starboard bulwarks were nearly beaten in; and even her larboard were greatly injured, many of the enemy's heavy shot passing through both sides; while every gun was finally disabled in the batteries fought. Although much has been justly said of the manner in which the Bon Homme Richard and the Essex were injured, neither of those ships suffered, relatively in a degree proportioned to the Lawrence. Distinguished as were the two former vessels, for the indomitable resolution with which they withstood the destructive fire directed against them, it did not surpass that manifested on board the latter; and it ought to be mentioned that throughout the whole of this trying day, her people, who had been so short a time acting together, manifested a steadiness and a discipline worthy of veterans.

"Although the Niagara suffered in a much less degree, 27 men killed and wounded, in a ship's company that mustered little more than 100 souls at quarters, under ordinary circumstances, would be thought a large proportion. Neither the Niagara nor any of the smaller vessels were injured in an unusual manner in their hulls, spars, and sails, the enemy having expended so much of his efforts against the Lawrence, and being so soon silenced when that brig and the gun-vessels got their raking positions, at the close of the conflict.

"The injuries sustained by the English were more divided, but were necessarily great. According to the official report of Captain Barclay, his vessels lost 41 killed, and 94 wounded, making a total of 135, including twelve officers, the precise number lost by the Americans. No report has been published, in which the loss of the respective vessels was given; but the Detroit had her first lieutenant killed, and her Commander, Captain Barclay, with her purser, wounded. Captain Finnis, of the Queen Charlotte, was also slain, and her first lieutenant was wounded. The commanding officer and first lieutenant of the Lady Prevost were among the wounded, as were the commanding officers of the Hunter and Chipeway. All the vessels were a good deal injured in their sails and hulls; the Queen Charlotte suffering most in proportion. Both the Detroit and Queen Charlotte rolled the masts out of them, at anchor at Put-in Bay, in a gale of wind, two days after the action.

"It is not easy to make a just comparison between the forces of the hostile squadrons on this occasion. In certain situations the Americans would have been materially superior, while in others the enemy might possess the advantage in perhaps an equal degree. In the circumstances under which the action was actually fought, the peculiar advantages and disadvantages were nearly equalized, the lightness of the wind preventing either of the two largest of the American vessels from profiting by its peculiar mode of proficiency, until quite near the close of the engagement, and particularly favoring the armament of the Detroit; while the smoothness of the water rendered the light vessels of the Americans very destructive as soon as they could be got within a proper range. The Detroit has been represented on good authority, to have been both a heavier and a stronger ship, than either of the American brigs, and the Queen Charlotte proved to be a much finer vessel than had been expected; while the Lady Prevost was found to be a large, warlike schooner. It was, perhaps, unfortunate for the enemy, that the armaments of the two last were not available under the circumstances which rendered the Detroit so efficient, as it destroyed the unity of his efforts. In short, the battle, for near half its duration, appears to have been fought, so far as efficiency was concerned, by the long guns of the two squadrons. This was particularly favorable to the Detroit and to the American gun-vessels; while the latter fought under the advantages of smooth water, and the disadvantages of having no quarters. The sides of the Detroit, which were unusually stout, were filled with shot that did not penetrate.

"In the number of men at quarters, there could have been no great disparity in the two squadrons. Mr. Yarnall, the first lieutenant of the Lawrence, testified before a court of inquiry, in 1815, that the brig to which he belonged had but '131 men and boys, of every description,' on board her, and that of these but 103 were fit for duty in the action. The Niagara was nearly in the same state. A part of the crews of all the vessels belonged to the militia. Indeed, without a large proportion of volunteers from the army, the battle could not have been fought. The British were no better off, having a considerable proportion of soldiers on board their vessels, though men of that description were probably as efficient in smooth water, and under the actual circumstances, as ordinary sailors.

"Captain Perry, in his report of the action, eulogised the conduct of his second in command, Captain Elliott; that of Mr. Turner, who commanded the Caledonia; and that of the officers of his own vessel. He also commended the officers of the Niagara, Mr. Packett of the Ariel, and Mr. Champlin of the Scorpion. It is now believed that the omission of the names of the commanders of the gun-vessels astern, was accidental. It would seem that these vessels, in general, were conducted with great gallantry. Towards the close of the action, indeed, the Caledonia, and some of the gun-vessels, would appear to have been handled with a boldness, considering their total want of quarters, bordering on temerity. They are known to have been within hail of the enemy, at the moment he struck, and to have been hailed by him. The grape and canister thrown by the Niagara and the schooners, during the last ten minutes of the battle, and which missed the enemy, rattled through the spars of the friendly vessels, as they lay opposite to each other, raking the English ahead and astern.

“Captain Perry was criticised, at the time, for the manner in which he had brought his squadron into action, it being thought he should have waited until his line was more compactly formed, and his small vessels could have closed. It has been said, that ‘an officer seldom went into action worse, or got out of it better.’ Truth is too often made the sacrifice of antithesis. The mode of attack appears to have been deemed by the enemy judicious, an opinion that speaks in its favor. The lightness of the wind, in edging down, was the only circumstance that was particularly adverse to the American vessels, but its total failure could not have been foreseen. The shortness of the distance on the lake rendered escape so easy, when an officer was disposed to avoid a battle, that no commander, who desired an action, would have been pardonable for permitting a delay on such a plan. The line of battle was highly judicious, the manner in which the Lawrence was supported by the Ariel and Scorpion being simple and ingenious. By steering for the head of the enemy’s line, the latter was prevented from gaining the wind by tacking, and when Captain Elliott imitated this manœuvre in the Niagara, the American squadron had a very commanding position, of which Captain Perry promptly availed himself. In a word, the American commander appears to have laid his plan with skill and judgment, and, in all in which it was frustrated, it would seem to have been the effect of accident. There has never been but one opinion of the manner in which he redeemed his error, even admitting that a fault was made at the outset; the united movements of the Niagara and of the small vessels, at the close of the action, having been as judicious as they were gallant and decisive. The personal deportment of Captain Perry, throughout the day, was worthy of all praise. He did not quit his own vessel when she became useless, to retire from the battle, but to gain it; an end that was fully obtained, and an effort which resulted in a triumph.

“The British vessels appear to have been gallantly fought, and were surrendered only when the battle was hopelessly lost. The fall of their different commanders was materially against them, though it is not probable the day could have been recovered after the Niagara gained the head of their line and the gun-vessels had closed. If the enemy made an error, it was in not tacking when he attempted to ware, but it is quite probable that the condition of his vessels did not admit of the former manœuvre. There was an instant when the enemy believed himself the conqueror, and a few minutes even, when the Americans doubted; but the latter never despaired; a moment sufficed to change their feelings, teaching the successful the fickleness of fortune, and admonishing the depressed of the virtue of perseverance.

“For his conduct in this battle, Captain Perry received a gold medal from Congress. Captain Elliott also received a gold medal. Rewards were bestowed on the officers and men generally, and the nation has long considered this action one of the proudest achievements on the water.

“On the 23d of October, the squadron transported the army of General Harrison to Buffalo; and on the 25th, Captain Perry resigned the command of the upper lakes to Captain Elliott, repairing himself to the sea-board. November 29th, this gallant and successful officer received the commission of a captain, which was dated on the day of the victory, and soon after he was appointed to the command of the Java 44, a new frigate, then fitting for sea at Baltimore.”

For the better defense of Erie a block house was built on Garrison Hill and another on the point of the peninsula, in the winter of 1813 and '14. Ten vessels of war were stationed in the harbor, and a large body of militia quartered upon the town. Several false alarms of the approach of the enemy was issued but no action was had at this post. In the fall of 1814, three men were executed for desertion, Bird and Rankin, marines, were shot, and Davis, a seaman, hung at the yard-arm of the Niagara.

The government vessels on Lake Erie were disposed of as follows: "The Lawrence was repaired, and after making a cruise to Lake Huron, was sunk in Misery Bay for better preservation. The Niagara lies under water near the Lawrence. The Caledonia was sold in 1815, called the General Wayne, and finally broken up at Erie. In 1814 the Ohio and Somers were cut out by the British at Fort Erie. The Scorpion and Tigress were taken the same year on Lake Huron; the Little Belt and Trippe were destroyed when Buffalo was burned; the Ariel went ashore and was wrecked in Buffalo Bay, and the Porcupine was transferred to the revenue department. The Detroit was sunk in Misery Bay near the Lawrence. She was raised in 1835 and rigged a bark by Captain Miles, and navigated the lake some years; lastly she was sent over the Niagara Falls for a spectacle, and probably a speculation too on the part of the hotel keepers. The Queen Charlotte was sunk in Misery Bay and afterwards fitted out for the lake trade; the Lady Prevost was sold to a Canada merchant in 1815."—[Miss Sanford's "History of Erie County."]

During the late four years of civil warfare, Erie bore her proportionate share with her sister counties in the great sacrifice which that contest involved. The 83d and 111th Regiments of Pennsylvania troops were organized at Erie, and detachments were also merged in other regiments and companies. Of means the County contributed with liberality, and her sons were found on every battle field of the Union, firm in their defense of the sovereignty of constitutional law. So does she, like adjacent counties, have a claim on the public gratitude now, in the aftertime, when the blessings of peace are so widely felt and so thoroughly appreciated.

GAZETTEER OF TOWNSHIPS.

AMITY was formed from Union in 1826. It is an eastern township, bounded on the north by Venango and the State of New York, on the east by Wayne, on the south by Union and on the west by Waterford. Its surface is undulating. The soil is a gravelly loam in the valleys, and on the hills, clayey, and is well adapted to grazing. It is drained by French Creek and its tributaries in the north and west part, and by Beaver Dam Run in the south-east part.

French Creek is a very rapid stream and affords a valuable water power, a small portion only of which is improved. The timber of this township is principally pine, hemlock, beach, maple, cherry and cucumber.

The population of the township in 1870 was 924, of whom 901 were native, 23 foreign and all white. Its area is 16,082 acres. The number of schools, according to the report ending June 3d, 1872, was 8½, employing 15 teachers. The number of children attending school was 109 males and 91 females; the average attendance was 150, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year was $1,070.98.

MILLERTON (Lake Pleasant p. o.) is a hamlet in the north-east part, on the outlet of Lake Pleasant, near its junction with French Creek, and contains two saw mills, three shingle mills, one wagon shop, one fork and broom handle, and rake-tooth factory, two blacksmith shops, one grocery store and 58 inhabitants.

Charles S. Cox's Shingle Mills, at Lake Pleasant, have a capacity for cutting 1,000,000 per year. Wm. A. Donaldson's Mills have a capacity for cutting 2,000,000, and Franklin W. Titus' Mills are capable of cutting about the same quantity of shingles per year.

HATCH HOLLOW (p. o.) is located in the southern part of the township, near the center.

The Pump Works of Hannibal E. Ladd, situated in the north part, on French Creek, and formerly operated by L. W. Olds, have a capacity for manufacturing 10,000 pumps per year, which find a ready market in this county and elsewhere.

The Amity Creamery, built in 1872, and under the management of Walter R. Palmer, uses the milk of 500 cows in the manufacture of butter and cheese. In 1872, from 150 cows, 150 pounds of butter and 450 pounds of cheese were made daily. Three men and two women are employed.

The first settlement of the township is a matter of dispute. Benj. Hinkston says that his father, Benj., came from Corinth, Vt., and settled in this County in 1816, and after moving to Greene, finally located in Amity in 1818, on the farm where his son now resides. James McCullough came Nov. 7, 1820, at the age of 29, and located on the farm where he is now living. He believes John Carron was the first settler, but does not give the date of coming. Charles Capron, with his father and mother, moved into the township from New Hampshire in 1819. Seth Shepardson came about the same time; Captain James Donaldson, of Cumberland Co., settled in the north-west part, on the present sight of Lake Pleasant village, in May 1822, on land obtained of Seth Reed, of Erie. Capt. Donaldson moved his family on in the spring of 1825. He had at the time, ten children, nine daughters and one son, Wm. A. Donaldson, then but four or five years old, and now the proprietor of the grocery and shingle mill at Lake Pleasant. Jabez C. Hubbell, from Butternuts, Otsego Co., N. Y., with his wife and two sons, Hiram and David, settled in the east part in 1829, where he still lives. Royal D. Mason and Jacob Rouse, settled in 1829. Mr. Rouse was a soldier in the war of 1812, and still lives in the township. Pliny Maynard settled in 1830, and William B., his son, in 1831; the latter still lives at the old homestead. Elias Patterson, from Dunkirk, N. Y., came in 1830; he died in 1856, leaving nine children. Geo. W. Baldwin settled in 1833, in the woods, on the farm where he now resides. Timothy Reed located in the north part, in 1819, he being at the time 23 years of age. He cleared a farm of 150 acres, the one now occupied by ——— Tanner.

CONCORD was formed from Broken Straw in 1820. Part of Corry was taken off in 1866. It is the south-east corner township of the County, and is bounded north by Wayne and the city of Corry, east by Warren County, south by Crawford County, and west by Union. The surface is undulating. The soil in the lowlands is a sandy loam, and on the hills a gravelly loam. It is well adapted to grazing, and dairying and stock raising is the chief pursuit of the farmers.

The township is watered principally by the South Branch of French Creek and tributaries. The northern part is crossed by the Philadelphia & Erie R. R., and nearly parallel, south of that line, by the Atlantic & Great Western R. R. The Oil Creek R. R., between Corry and Titusville, crosses the township about two miles west of the east line. The area of the township is 20,316 acres.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,436, of whom 1,303 were native, 133 foreign, and all, except 11, white. The number of schools during the year ending June 3, 1872, was 10, employing 3 male and 17 female teachers; the number of children attending school was 204 males and 162 females; the average attendance was 181, at a cost per pupil of 74 cents per month. The amount expended for school purposes was $2,226.63.

CONCORD STATION, (p. v.,) on the P. & E. R. R., and between that and the A. & G. W. R. R., in the western part, is a place of considerable importance, and contains one church, (M. E.,) one hotel, three saw mills, two grist mills, two schools, one blacksmith shop, one cooper shop, and about fifty houses. There are two depots, one for each road. Beaver River affords a very good water power during the most part of the year.

LOVELLS STATION (p. o.) is a hamlet and station on the P. & E. and A. & G. W. R. R.'s, about four miles west of Corry.

The first settlers were Wm. Miles and his family, and Wm. Cook and family, who came together in 1795. Mr. Miles was a Revolutionary soldier, and at the capture of Fort Freeland, was made a prisoner and taken to Canada, where he remained until peace was declared. After his return, he was appointed one of the surveyors of the Tenth Donation Tract. This was about ten years before he finally located here. In 1800 Mr. Miles removed to Union City, where he laid the foundations of that thriving borough. Joseph Hall, a native of Virginia, where he was born Dec. 6th, 1765, moved to Beaver Dam in 1797, where he remained until 1800, when he came to this township and located at Concord Station. He died here in his 81st year. Anna, his wife, survived him until 1861, when she died at the age of 89.

Belknap & Sons' Saw and Grist Mills are run by water power. The saw mills cut about 300,000 feet of lumber per year.

Bacon's Saw Mill has a capacity for cutting 1,000 feet per hour; hemlock is the principal lumber manufactured. The mill is driven by steam, and employs seven men.

Smith's Saw Mill cuts from two to three hundred thousand feet per annum.

Young's Steam Saw Mill cuts from five to ten thousand feet of lumber per day; principally beech and maple.

Wellman & Co's Shingle Mill has a capacity for cutting 3,000,000 pine shingles per year.

Ellis' Lath and Spring Bed Works employ six to eight men, and can manufacture 100 spring beds and 6,000 to 8,000 pieces of lath per day. They also manufacture clothes pins quite extensively.

Crowell's Saw Mill, on French Creek, at Lovells Station, cuts about 2,000 feet per day.

Hitchcock Bros. & Beach's Steam Saw Mill, in the south-east part, has a capacity for cutting 10,000 to 14,000 feet per day. A track from the mill connects with the Oil Creek R. R. Six men are employed.

White, Chapman & Co's Saw Mill employ six men and has a capacity for manufacturing 10,000 feet of lumber per day.

James McCrea, a native of Ireland, came to this township, in 1796, and settled on the place where his son Robert was born, and still resides. James McCrea's father (James) came here with him, and aided in clearing the farm. Simeon Stewart, John Lilley, James Crowell, Russell Darrow and Stephen Hollis, were early settlers.

The opening of the oil regions, and the building up of Corry, together with the abundant railroad facilities for transportation of lumber and other products, have very materially helped to develop the resources of this township. Several oil wells have been sunk in this township, none of which were remunerative.

CONNEAUT, one of the original townships, located in the south-west corner of the County, is bounded north by Conneaut Creek and Girard, on the east by Elk Creek township, on the south by Crawford County and on the west by Springfield and Ohio. The surface is generally level with gentle declivities towards the streams. The soil of the bottom lands is a very rich alluvium, and is well adapted to grass and grain. Gravel loam predominates on the table lands, and the uplands are mostly clayey. Grain farming and stock raising are profitable branches of husbandry. The township is watered principally by Conneaut Creek and its tributaries.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,990, of whom 1,907 were native, 83 foreign and all, except 5, white. Its area is 25,322 acres. The number of schools during the year ending June 3, 1872, was 14, employing 22 teachers. The number of children attending school was 188 males and 209 females; and the average attendance was 221, at a cost per pupil of 71 cents per month. The amount expended for school purposes was $2,187.89.

The Erie and Pittsburg Railroad crosses the eastern portion of the township. The Beaver and Erie Canal (now discontinued) crosses the south-eastern part, passing in its course through the borough of Albion.

ALBION BOROUGH, (p. v.) incorporated in 1860, and located near the center of the east border, 26 miles south-west of Erie, is a thriving town of about 500 inhabitants. It is one mile east of Albion Station, on the E. & P. R. R., and contains one church, (M. E.,) one union school,* two dry goods, two hardware, one drug, one flour and feed, one grocery and one furniture store, one hotel, one merchant tailor, three harness, three blacksmith and two wagon shops, one shingle factory, one horse-rake factory, one woolen mill, three saw mills and one grist mill. The extensive fork and handle factory of A. Denio has for many years been located here, but owing to the increased facilities offered at Girard, these works have been removed there.

ALBION STATION on the E. & P. R. R., one mile west of the borough, contains two eating saloons and the Depot. It is said that there is more freight shipped from this station than from any other between Erie and Sharon.

Mason's Shingle Mill, at Albion, employs five men and has a capacity for turning out 10,000 shingles per day, but owing to scarcity of timber the annual cut is only about 1,100,000.

Albion Woolen Mills, rebuilt in 1866, on the site of the old mill erected about 1840, by W. H. Gray, is owned and operated by T. Thornton & Sons, who manufacture annually about 6,000 yards of various kinds of cloth for domestic consumption. The firm also manufacture lumber.

Andrew's Horse Rake Factory, located at Albion, was established in 1856 and supplies to the market about 1,500 superior revolving rakes annually. Mr. Andrews also saws from three to five hundred thousand feet of lumber each year.

Albion Flouring Mills, owned by O. E. Gleason, of Corry, and superintended by J. R. Ferguson, has two runs of stones, and confines its business chiefly to custom grinding. Connected with the grist mill is a saw mill, which cuts about 200,000 feet of lumber annually.

Andrews & Thornton's Oar Works, at Albion, turned out about 200,000 feet of oars during the year 1872.

Western Star Lodge, No. 304, A. Y. M., was chartered Dec. 1, 1856. Regular communications first and third Tuesdays of each month.

Albion Lodge, No. 376, I. O. of O. F., was instituted in 1849. The charter and books were burned in 1851. The present number of members is fifty.

CHERRY HILL, (p. o.,) in the north part, is a hamlet containing one church, (Methodist,) two general stores and one blacksmith shop. The place is pleasantly situated on elevated ground.

KEEPPVILLE, (p. o.,) formally known as Harrisonville, a hamlet on a branch of the Conneaut, and a station on the E. & P. R. R., about two and a half miles south-west of Albion, contains a cheese factory, one store and one church, (M. E.)

Keeppville Cheese Factory, erected in 1873, by Amos K. Keep, H. Stoddard and Josiah J. Pelton, at a cost of $1,500, is expected to use the milk of 400 cows.

Keeppville Lodge, No. 1,022, I. O. of G. T., was organized Dec. 1872 with thirteen members. The membership has since (June 1873) increased to forty. The society is in a flourishing condition, and they contemplate building a society hall at Keeppville.

* The Union School comprises two departments with two teachers who are employed during nine months of the year. About 100 pupils are in attendance. The building, with furniture and apparatus, cost $7,000. The amount expended for school purposes during the year ending June 3, 1872, was $2,142.98.

M. & A. Fell's Steam Saw Mill, on the West Branch of the Conneaut, near the center of the township, has a capacity for cutting six to eight thousand feet of lumber per day. The owners reside in Mercer Co. John Harrington is superintendent of the mill.

Keep & Alvord's Saw Mill, also on the West Branch of the Conneaut, has a capacity of cutting about 2,000 feet of lumber per day.

Akerly's Shingle Mill, in the south-west part, manufactures about 700,000 shingles annually.

Settlement began about 1795, in which year Jonathan Spaulding emigrated from the State of New York. His sons, David, born in this township in 1802, John, born in 1806, and Geo., born in 1816, still reside here. They say that their father was one of the first settlers. Henry Wood was born in this township about 1798. He died in 1872. Mrs. Ruth Harrington, (widow of Matthews,) whose maiden name was Crane, says she was the first white child born in the township; she was born April 20, 1799. Her father, Elihu Crane, and uncle, Abiathar Crane, from Conn., settled here in 1798. Matthews Harrington, born in Vt., in 1782, came to this township in 1800, and settled at Cherry Hill. He made the first permanent settlement in that part, and helped build the first permanent roads in the township. During the war of 1812-14 he went to Erie to aid in the defense of that place against any attack by the British. He raised a family of ten children, most of whom settled in this township. He died in 1864 at the age of 82 years. His father, Israel Harrington, a native of Rhode Island and a soldier in the Revolution, moved here in 1822, and after a short residence near his son, moved to Sandusky, Ohio, where he died in 1825. Wm. Harrington, the oldest of Matthews' children, was born here in 1805. His family of six children are all located within a mile of his own residence.

George Griffy located on several hundred acres of land in 1800, and resided here until his death in 1843. Andrew Cole, from Onondaga Co., N. Y., came about 1800 and resided here until his death, in 1862. He was among the builders of the first roads. Stephen Randall, and Sheffield, his son, from Rensselaer Co., N. Y., also came in 1800, and settled about a mile west of Keepville. Robert McKee, from near Carlisle, in this State, settled near Cherry Hill in 1801, and helped to build the first roads. Henry Ball, of Fredericksburg, Va., settled in the north-east part of the township in 1802. He served as Captain in the war of 1812, and died in 1862, at the age of 83. Patrick Kennedy, of Conn., who had previously visited Erie with a party of surveyors, moved to this township about 1802, and resided here until his death, in 1813. His son, Royal Kennedy, came with his father and remained until his death, in 1860. Marsena Keep, from Montgomery Co., N. Y., located at Keepville in 1803, and made the first permanent settlement in that part of the township. He resided here until his death, in 1851. Marsena Keep, Jr., came here with his father and still resides here. He has held several offices of trust, and has helped to clear the land of its native forests. Daniel B. Keep, of this town, Wm. R., of Elk Creek, and Matthew L., of Crawford Co., are brothers of Marsena, Jr., and were all born here.

Lyman Jackson, from Otsego Co., N. Y., moved here in 1806. His son, Michael, came in 1810, remained a few months, returned to Otsego Co. N. Y., and finally moved here with his family in 1815, and located on the present site of Albion borough, where he says he built the first saw mill that was put in operation here. Amos King built the first grist mill, at Albion. Stephen Rumsey built the first distillery, at what was then known as "Lexington," about three miles north of Albion. The first death in the township is said to have been that of Mrs. — Alexander; her husband was probably the first settler at Albion. Patrick Kennedy and Wm. Paine were among the first. The latter died here in 1853. He had, late in the last century, first visited this County with the surveying party, of which Patrick Kennedy was a member, which wintered at Erie. He came here about 1816. Lyman Jackson taught the first school in Albion. Geo. Stuntz, from Barclay Co., Va., moved first to Beaver township, Crawford Co., thence to Ohio, and finally located at Albion, in 1815. He was for many years a local preacher in the M. E. Church. In 1845 he moved to Elk Creek, where he died in 1866. E. W. Stuntz, son of Geo., came here in 1815 with his father. He has surveyed many of the farms hereabouts, and has several times been school director. He says that a daughter was born to Abither Crane on the same night that Mrs. Harrington was born, and that the two cousins were the first white children born in the township. Nathaniel Pomeroy, a native of Mass., moved here in 1815, and remained here until 1838, when he went to Elk Creek township, where he still resides at the age of 79 years. Bartholomew Fobes, from New York, was one of the early settlers. He is now 82 years of age. Howard, John, Nathan, Elias and David Salsbury, settled in the north part of the township, on Conneaut Creek, at a very early day. An Indian path was the only road in that section. They were often surprised by wild animals, as were many others of the early settlers. The Salsburys planted the first orchard in that part of the township. Benjamin Carr, now 80 years of age, moved from Essex Co., N. Y., in 1816, to Springfield township, where he remained until 1834, at which time he came here. James W. and G. Spicer, from New York, located in the north part, near Conneaut Creek, in 1816. Noah Kidder, and Francis, his son, came from New Hampshire, in 1817, to Springfield, and to this township in 1819. Edward DeWolf, from Saratoga Co., N. Y., came in 1819, and Wm. B., his son, came in 1820. Daniel Rossiter, from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., came in 1819. Abijah Barns, from Cayuga Co., N. Y., came in 1818. Rhodolphus Loomis, came from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., in 1820. Jonas Lewis came in 1829, John Curtis and Wm. Cornell, in 1832, Andrew and Silas Morrison, and Chester Morley, in 1833, Hiram Griffis, Christopher Cross and Edward Dorrance, in 1834, Daniel Waters, Andrew Swap and Joseph Tubbs, in 1837, Isaiah and Johnson Pelton, in 1838, and Marcus A. Bumpus, in 1839. A large number of the settlers were from Onondaga Co., N. Y.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Albion was organized in 1855 with about 100 members by Rev. Calvin Kingsley. The first pastor was Rev. I. O. Fisher; the present one is Rev. S. M. Clark. The Church edifice was erected in 1855, at a cost of $2,500, and will seat about 400 persons. The present membership is about 100, and the Church property is valued at $5,000. Connected with this Church, at Kidders Corners, in the north-western part of the township, is a small class of about 20 members.—[Information furnished by E. W. Stuntz.

The Wesleyan Methodist Church at Keepville was organized with about 14 members, in 1854, by the Wesleyan Methodist Society. Rev. John L. Moore was the first pastor. The Church edifice was erected in 1854, at a cost of $1,000, and will seat about 200 persons. The present value of the Church property is $1,500. The society has not flourished here and the church is occupied by the Methodist Episcopal. Rev. J. B. Wright is the present pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal Church at Cherry Hill was organized with about 15 members, in 1858, by Rev. J. W. Wilson; Rev. I. O. Fisher, was the first pastor. At present there is no settled pastor; Rev. Mr. Lowe, of Girard, supplies the pulpit. The Church edifice was erected in 1858, at a cost of $1,250, and will seat 150 persons. The present value of the Church property is $2,000.—[Information furnished by Moses VanSlyke.

CORRY CITY, formed from Concord and Wayne, was incorporated by act of the Legislature, in 1866. It is situated on the eastern line of the County, at the junction of the Philadelphia & Erie, Atlantic & Great Western, Oil Creek, and Buffalo, Corry & Pittsburg Railroads, and is one of those remarkable cities, that sometimes spring suddenly into existence, pushed irresistably onward, to satisfy the demands of necessity. No sane man would have selected the site on which Corry stands, as a fit place to found a city, because of its splendid water power, or by reason of its lovely scenery or rich agricultural population immediately surrounding it; for its natural water privileges consisted of insignificant brooks and pond holes; and thirteen years ago the surface was either hill or marsh, and mostly clothed with an unbroken forest. In 1858 the Philadelphia & Erie R. R.

was completed through this section. In 1861, in June, the Atlantic & Great Western R. R. was completed to this point, and a junction was formed with the P. & E. R. R., and the place was called "Atlantic and Erie Junction." Subsequently, in October of that year, Mr. Hill, then acting as general superintendent, of the A. & G. W. R. R., changed the name to "Corry," in honor, it is understood, of Hiram Cory, a resident farmer.

About this time the Oil Fever began to rage, and capitalists invested heavily in wells and refineries. From Titusville north, the oil had to be drawn overland by teams, and the nearest and most accessible point to the railroad was sought after. Mr. W. H. L. Smith was sent out by the Downer Oil Co., of Boston, to find the best location on the railroad for a refinery. After visiting Union Mills and Columbus, his choice fell on the little flag station, since known as "Corry." Mr. Smith purchased Mr. Corry's farm of sixty acres, and sent to Boston for Eugene Wright to come and superintend the clearing of land and erection of works. The land was laid out in lots, streets were located and worked as necessity required. The first building erected was an eating house, by S. A. Bennett, at the Junction. The first regularly constructed frame building is said to have been an office of the Downer Oil Co., in the fall of 1861. It soon became evident that Corry was to be the north-eastern outlet to the oil regions, and improvements were rapidly pushed forward. A post office was established, and C. S. Harris was the first post master. This same fall, (1861,) a small refinery, known as the "Frenchman's," in rear of the Downer Oil Works, was put in operation. The spring of 1862 witnessed great activity at Corry. In that year the Downer Oil Works, the Kent Oil Works, the Boston Hotel, Gilson House, and several stores and dwellings, besides depots and storehouses were erected; the Oil Creek Railroad was completed from Titusville, and the P. & E. R. R. was crossed by the A. & G. W. R. R. Main Street and First Avenue were laid out and opened, and the future prosperity and growth of Corry was insured. The place was filled with a population of working people. It was no place then for idlers or loungers. The land had to be drained; stumps and logs removed from the streets, and the roadbed improved. Labor was at a premium. During the season of 1863 improvements progressed, a newspaper, the "Corry City News," was commenced, and in the autumn of that year the place was organized as a Borough, and S. A. Bennett was elected Burgess. The season of 1864 brought many other improvements to Corry, and although building was pushed forward rapidly as possible, the town was constantly full to overflowing. Hotel keepers grew rich without effort, so great was the rush of travelers. Space will not admit of a lengthy following of the rise and growth of Corry since 1864 to the present time. In that year Mr. G. W. N. Yost began extensive improvements. The First National Bank and Corry National Bank were organized with a capital of $100,000 each. Manufactories were erected, and the Concord Street School House was built. In 1866 the Borough became a City, as previously stated. The prosperity of the town has not progressed without its interruptions. Speculation has run rife and mercantile business has been overdone; so that in many cases, fortunes expected have not been realized. At present Corry contains eight churches, (Presbyterian, Episcopal, Baptist, Catholic, United Brethren, two Methodist and the Christian Chapel,) three public school buildings, a City Hall, on the corner of Center and South Streets, 140x64 feet, the ground floor of which is occupied by the Post Office, Fire Department and two stores; the Council Chamber, Mechanics Institute and offices occupying the second floor, while a public hall, 60x100 feet, is on the third floor, the building costing the City $30,000, the Corry Machine Works, now Gibbs & Sterrett Manufacturing Co., the Frank S. Allen Manufacturing Co., a brush factory, barrel factory, Corry Manufacturing and Lumber Co., Corry Furniture Co., two tanneries, a soap factory, two planing mills and sash, door and blind factories, the Novelty Works machine shop, a sewer pipe works, shovel, hoe and fork-handle factory, a bent stuff factory, a candy factory, two newspaper offices, gas and water works, &c. The population of the city in 1870 was 6,809, of whom 5,080 were natives, 1,729 foreign, and all, except 83, white. The present population will not vary much from that of 1870. During the year ending June 3, 1872, there were 19 schools, employing 1 male and 20 female teachers. The number of children attending school was 654 males and 701 females, and the average attendance was 967, at a cost per month per pupil of $1.14. The total expenditure for school purposes was $36,381.24. At the present time the city contains 76 streets.

The success of Corry in the future will depend much upon her manufactures. The people are waking up to the necessity of fostering institutions of this kind, and the city has recently aided by her bonds several manufactories, and others no doubt will in the same way be induced to locate here. It is due to the enterprise of the place to mention more at length some of the important establishments. The extracts here given are mainly taken from a recent number of the Corry Weekly Republican:

The Downer Oil Works (now Corry Kerosene Oil Works) were projected in 1861, "and during the winter of 1861-2, every preparation was completed for active and earnest work in the Spring to follow. Good clay for brick-making was found between First and Second Avenues, and on the 29th or 30th of April, 1862, the first bricks for the Works were there moulded. L. J. Tibbals superintended this branch of the business; Geo. H. Coney was charged with a supervision of the building operations, with Eugene Wright as assistant, while Mr. Smith held the position of business man and Manager. Nearly 1,500,000 bricks were used in the construction of buildings for the Downer Oil Works. In the Summer of 1862, a considerable number of wooden buildings were also erected, so that seven and three-fourths acres appropriated for the purpose, had about two-thirds of their area covered with buildings. The brick structures were partitioned with solid brick walls on foundations several feet below the surface, and each apartment supplied with fixtures for the introduction of steam in case of fire. One apartment was fitted for a Blacksmith Shop, another for a Machine Shop, another for a Wood Shop and Planing Mill, and a separate building for a Barrel Factory. Iron Tankage capable of storing 60,000 barrels of oil was also constructed, fourteen Stills put in with an aggregate capacity of 1000 barrels, and four engines with an aggregate power of 150 horses were supplied with steam by one tubular and two large double-flue boilers. Several miles of gas pipe were used in making connections. Four steam pumps and two rotaries supply the various purposes of the establishment; and sufficient hose to reach from the pumps to any portion of the buildings, is always ready for any emergency that may call for its use. An Ice House, capable of storing 20,000 tons of ice, is a part of the Works, and is annually supplied from an artificial pond adjoining. Along the entire front of the Works extend Railroad tracks, corresponding in gauge with the several lines centering here, so that the products of the establishment can be transported to any point in the Union accessible by rail, without breaking bulk. To insure a permanent supply of good water, iron pipes were laid from the hill South of the city—a stretch of half a mile, and emptied into a pond near the buildings, excavated for the purpose."

"Corry Machine Shops.—These immense works were built some years since by G. W. N. Yost, but after passing through various vicissitudes they were closed and were an eye sore, not only to our citizens but to all who traveled through the place. Last spring Messrs. Gibbs, Sterrett & Co., heavy manufacturers of engines, boilers and mill gearing at Nunda, N. Y., and well tools &c., at Titusville, agreed with the city to remove their Nunda works to this place and buy the old shops, fit them up and open the manufacture of engines and boilers, mill gearing, mowing machines etc., therein; the city to give them a bonus of $80,000. They have removed their machinery and hands from Nunda, and have the machinery nearly all placed. They have new roofed about an acre of their buildings and are pushing the repairs on the balance as rapidly as possible. They have over $50,000 worth of patterns for mill gearing alone, comprising patterns of cog wheels from a few inches in diameter to eight feet. They are now prepared to do all kinds of job work in the line of mill gearing. They will have a large number of men at work making mowing machines within a few days. They intend to have 2,000 machines ready for the summer trade of '74. They are now running 100 men, and within 30 days will have nearly double that number. They took off their first heat in their immense foundry on Friday last. This Company is known far and wide as A No. 1, and we may well feel elated to think we have secured the location of their works here. There are several gentlemen connected with this Company who will make their home with us after a short time. We were pleased to meet Mr. John Reed, cashier of the works here, a few days ago. He is a very pleasant business man, and we bespeak for him a cordial welcome."

"Corry Furniture Company.—The factory of this company is situated in the eastern part of the town. It has but recently organized, and owes its existence in part to the aid given by the city toward the establishment of manufacturing. The bonus in bonds given the company was $25,000, $15,000 of which have been paid in. The company is composed of C. W. Hare, R. M. Johnson, James Lewis, C. J. Swift and O. E. Gleason. At present about fifty men are employed in the factory, but the intention is to thribble the force in a short time. Although it is called a furniture factory, the principal business of the company now is the manufacture of staves, bolts, oil barrels and common bedsteads. It is the intention of the company to engage in the manufacture of all kinds of furniture as soon as the necessary machinery and facilities can be procured. The capital of the company is $50,000, $30,000 of which has been already expended in the erection of buildings and machinery."

"The Frank S. Allen Manufacturing Company.—This Company made arrangements with the city by which they were to receive a bonus of $20,000, but on second thought they concluded to depend on themselves. They bought a portion of the Downer Works and put in their machinery, and are now employing forty hands. Their principal business is the manufacture of Brush Blocks. They do not finish any brushes, they merely cut out the blocks and bore the holes ready for the bristles. Heretofore all the holes in brush blocks have been bored one at a time, which was a slow, laborious, and costly process. This Company has machines of their own invention with which they can bore all the holes in a block at once. One small boy can bore at least 10,000 per day. They manufacture their own machines. They are also manufacturing machines for boring iron in the same way. All the holes in a boiler plate can be bored at once. This machinery is bound to make a revolution in this kind of business. Frank S. Allen, of New York, is proprietor, while G. F. Ritchel is superintendent and manager. Mr. Ritchel is the right man in the right place. He is the inventor of the machinery used. They are doing a good business and in a short time will employ a large number of hands. In the wake of this institution comes the

"Brush Factory of Kent, Benson and others, situated on the corner of Pleasant street and Second Avenue, [which was organized June 1st, 1873, with a capital of $8,000.] Their building is about 30x80, two stories and basement. The basement is used for storage. The east end of the first floor is used as an office for the Company, also as the 'Mayor's Office,' Mr. Kent being Mayor of the city. It is one of the finest offices in the city. The balance of the first floor is fitted up with rows of seats and benches for the use of the boys who put the bristles into the blocks. The boys employed range from ten to fifteen years of age. They are now making about sixty cents per day—some more and some less. The second story is fitted up for the girls' workshop and finishing room. Mr. Benson has charge of this department and he certainly should be praised for the pleasant way he has in managing so many chatter-boxes. There are about one hundred children now employed there. We think this the model factory of the city. The children employed there not only receive good pay for their services, but they are acquiring steady business habits. We can see a decided improvement on the streets since this factory started. We wish the founders of that institution all the success imaginable."

The Cooper Shops of Michael Lawler, on Fifth Avenue and West Main Street, give employment to forty-eight men.

Recently public meetings have been called for the purpose of securing the city's aid towards the location here of an extensive blast furnace for the manufacture of charcoal iron. Such a result would indeed be desirable and add greatly to the prosperity of the city.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was the first of the Protestant churches organized in the city, Sept. 1862, by Rev. Geo. F. Reeser. The society held services in halls and in Concord Street school house until a church edifice was erected in 1865. There are now two societies, one on Concord Street above Main, Rev. J. F. Wilson, pastor; and the other on Pike Street near Center, Rev. A. A. Horton, pastor.

First Presbyterian Church was organized with nine members, Jan. 18th, 1864, by Rev. S. W. Roe, of the Presbytery of Buffalo. Rev. J. Odell was the first pastor. The church on Center Street was erected in 1865, and two years later it was enlarged and will accommodate about 300 people. The present pastor is Rev. S. G. Hopkins.

First Baptist Church was organized with seven members, Oct. 18th, 1863. Rev. A. D. Bush was the first pastor. Their church on Pleasant Street corner of 2d Avenue, was erected in 1864-5. The present pastor is Rev. Alphonso C. Williams.

Emanuel Episcopal Church, corner of Smith and Center Streets, was erected in 1865-6. Episcopal services had been conducted by Rev. John Ireland, of Waterford, as early as 1862; first in private houses, then in school houses and at Cook's Hall. Rev. John T. Protheroe, B. D., was the first rector of the Parish.

Christian Church edifice, on Pleasant Street, was erected in 1864, by G. W. N. Yost, and donated to the society of about nine members. It was burned in the winter of 1868-9 and a new one was erected the following year. Rev. J. E. Rowe was the first pastor. At present the society has no pastor and the church is not open for services.

United Brethren Church was organized in 1865, by Rev. G. W. Clarke, and the Church edifice, on Pike Street, was erected in 1866. This building was burned in 1872, since which a new one has been erected.

St. Thomas (Catholic) Church edifice was erected early in the season of 1862, and dedicated by Bishop Young in Sept. of that year. Rev. Father Lonergan was the first and is the present priest.

ELK CREEK, one of the original townships, is located on the south line and bounded west by Conneaut, north by Girard and Franklin, and east by Franklin and Washington.

A portion of Franklin was taken off in 1844. The surface is generally level in the north part, and undulating in the south.

The soil in the north is sandy loam, and in the south, loam and clay, mixed with gravel. Much of the surface is yet covered by forest. The principal timber is beach, maple, ash, whitewood, cucumber and hemlock. The cereals are successfully grown, but dairying and stock raising are the chief pursuits of farmers.

A branch of Elk Creek flowing north, a tributary of the Conneaut flowing north-west, and Cussenago Creek flowing south, are the principal streams. The north-western corner is crossed by the Beaver & Erie Canal, now unused.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,462, of whom 1,346 were native, 116 foreign, and all white. Its area is 19,200 acres. The number of schools during the year ending June 3d, 1872, was 11, employing 2 male and 15 female teachers. The number of children attending school was 230 males and 225 females. The average number in attendance was 411, at a cost per month per pupil of 75 cents. The amount expended for school purposes was $1,914.75.

WELLSBURG (Lundys Lane p. o.) is a borough of about 350 inhabitants, and is situated in the western part, on a branch of the Conneaut Creek. It contains two churches (Free Will Baptist and Universalist,) one union school building, two dry goods stores, one grocery, one tannery, one grist mill, two saw mills, one sash, door and blind factory and planing mill, one flax mill, one broom manufactory, one harness and saddlery hardware shop, two furniture stores, two blacksmiths shops and one cheese factory. The place received its name from Franklin Wells, the first settler at this place, who, with his father, Samuel Wells, emigrated from St. Albans, Vt., and located here about 1815, where they resided until their deaths. Samuel died in 1825, and Franklin in 1851. About 50 years ago they drilled a salt well, and manufactured salt to some extent. Franklin afterwards built several saw mills and one grist mill, and took a lively interest in the development of the County.

CRANESVILLE, (Elk Creek p. o.,) named from Elihu Crane, Sr., the first settler, who located here about 1796 or '97, is a village of about 120 inhabitants, and contains two general stores, two wagon shops, one blacksmith shop, one sash and blind factory and planing mill, and one church, (Methodist). The village was formerly a canal station.

Settlement of the township progressed slowly until about 1832. The first settler was Elihu Crane, as before stated, in 1796 or '97. Eli Colton, from Granby, Hartford Co., Conn., emigrated to this township in 1798. At that time his nearest neighbor was three miles distant. During the first winter he lived alone in a shanty; he wintered his oxen on browse and a few cornstalks.

James McCommons, Sen., a native of Ireland, emigrated to this country at the age of 14, in company with his father. They settled in Philadelphia, where they remained two years. They next went to Meadville, and finally settled in this township, at what has since been known as McCommons Corners, in 1805. A small improvement had previously been made on their place by a man named Wallace. The McCommons' nearest neighbors were three miles distant. Few roads had been opened and the settlers were chiefly guided through the forest by blazed trees. Wild animals and game were abundant, and the McCommons were something of sportsmen. The younger one, it is said, killed over a hundred deer. James McCommon, Sr., was father of James Jr. and William.

Daniel Winchester, of Stafford Co., Conn., settled on the road between Wellsburg and McCommons Corners, in 1815. Nathan Rogers, and his son, Nathan S., from Rensselaer Co., N. Y., settled here in 1824. Daniel Sherrod, from Susquehanna Co., settled in the east part in 1802, on Sherrod Hill, where he resided until his death. Fanny Sherrod, widow of Daniel's son, was a native of Greene Co., N. Y., where she was born in 1808. She moved with her father to Crawford Co., where she resided until her marriage, in June 1827, when she came to this township and located on lands she now owns. Levi and Wm. Joslin, from Oneida Co., N. Y., settled in the south-west part in 1832; that section of the township was then an unbroken wilderness. In that year also came Edmond Goodwin, from the same county, Jacob I. Rogers, from Orleans Co., N. Y., Sylvester Hubbard, from Tompkins Co., N. Y., who located about two and three-quarter miles east of Wellsburg, Samuel Sherman, of Herkimer Co., N. Y., with his family, and John Warner, from Mass. In 1833, Jno. Stafford, a native of Augusta, Oneida Co., N. Y., located on the Population Road, on the east line. Mr. Warner became one of the substantial men of the township. His death occurred June 8th, 1873. Wm. Vorse, from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., settled near the east line of the township, at what is known as Francis Settlement, in 1833. Orange and Parley Miller, brothers, settled in the north-east part, in the wilderness, about 1834. Jeremiah Crowley, Sen., a native of Ireland, came to this country and settled in the south-east corner of the township, in 1835 or '36. His nearest neighbors, about a mile distant, were families named Acres and Almey. Jeremiah Crowley, Jr., now occupies the farm settled by his father. Daniel Smith, from Vermont, settled on the farm now occupied by his heirs, in the south-west corner of the township, in 1836. Burr L. Pulling, of Saratoga Co., N. Y., located here in 1838, on a farm that had previously been partially improved. The neighbors were but few and scattering, and he had to make a circuit of eight or ten miles to find men enough to help raise his buildings. Of the families who came in during 1832, that of Samuel Sherman has preserved a pretty full genealogical record. His son, Harley

Sherman, says his forefathers came from Dedham, Eng., in 1634, and settled at Stratford, Conn. In 1763 his grandfather removed to Williamstown, Berkshire Co., Mass., where his father (Samuel) was born, Jan. 2d, 1775. In 1790 the family emigrated to German Flats, where Harley and other members of the family were born. Samuel Sherman died March 19th, 1852, and his wife followed him in Nov. 1857.

Wellsburg Universalist Church was organized with 25 members, in June 1838, by Rev Edson Beals, the first pastor. The first and present Church edifice was erected in 1855 at a cost of $1,500, and will seat 200 to 300 persons. The church was thoroughly repaired in 1871, and the property is now valued at $3,000. The "Lake Erie Association" was organized at Wellsburg in 1839.—[Information furnished by Harley Sherman.]

The Methodist Episcopal Church at Pleasant Valley was organized with 12 members, in 1833, by Wm. Todd, the first pastor. The first and present Church edifice was erected in 1859 at an expense of $1,300, and the present value of the Church property is $1,350. The house will seat comfortably 200 persons.—[Information furnished by John Thompson.]

ERIE CITY, a port of entry and seat of justice, was made a Borough in July, 1805, and was incorporated a City in 1851. The locality was, at an early day, called by the French, Presqu'île. April 18th, 1795, an act passed the Legislature to lay out a town. The Governor appointed two Commissioners, Gen. Wm. Irvine and Andrew Elliott, to survey sixteen hundred acres for town lots, and thirty-four hundred for out lots &c., &c. In July of that year a corps of engineers arrived, headed by General Elliott and escorted by a company of Pennsylvania militia, commanded by Capt. John Grubb, and proceeded to lay out the town in conformity with the act. Col. Seth Reed and family were the first actual settlers in the city or County. They came early in the spring of 1795. Their first shelter was some huts set up in crotches, with poles across, and covered with bark of the cucumber tree. At first without floors, they subsequently indulged in the luxury of them, made by laying down strips of bark. A log cabin was soon erected, and a little later it was enlarged and called the Presqu'île Hotel. Col. Reed did not live to see many improvements at Erie; he died at the age of 53 years, March 19, 1797, after a residence here of less than two years. His third son, Rufus Seth, who followed his father here, was at the time just verging into manhood. He was an ambitious, industrious and far seeing man, with a mind able to grasp successfully with the trials as well as triumphs of an extensive business. He was for many years honored as the benefactor and leading spirit of the town. He inaugurated commercial enterprises that were the means of making Erie what it is to-day. Rufus S. Reed died at 70, June 1st, 1846. Judah Colt was another man to whom Erie owed much of its early prosperity. He had, previous to his residence, been the agent of the Population Company. After a useful and exemplary life, he died, Oct. 11th, 1832, at the age of 71 years.

Soon after the advent here of Col. Reed, a company of U. S. troops commenced felling the timber on Garrison Hill for the purpose of erecting a stockade garrison, which, inclosing their block houses, was completed in that year. In 1796, Gen. Anthony Wayne, then Commander-in-Chief of the Army, received an appointment from Government to conclude a treaty with the North-west Indians, and on his return, after accomplishing his mission, he sailed from Detroit to Erie, on his way home to Chester County. On the passage he was attacked by his old malady, the gout; he was landed at Erie in a prostrated condition, and, at his own request, was taken to the Garrison and placed in the north-west block house. Dr. J. C. Wallace, a skillful surgeon of the Army, then at Pittsburg, was sent for with the greatest dispatch, but the General had died before he could arrive. His death occurred Dec. 15th, 1796, and he was buried, in compliance with his own request, at the foot of the flag staff. "A. W." on a single stone, placed at his head, and a neat railing inclosing it, marks his resting place. In 1809 the remains were moved by his son, Col. Isaac Wayne, of Chester Co., and deposited in Radnor churchyard, near Philadelphia.

In 1800 Erie County was erected into a separate county, and Erie designated as the place of holding Courts of Justice; yet temporarily it was a part of Crawford County. April 2, 1803, the County was fully organized for all judicial purposes. This took place at the house of George Buchler, on the corner of Third and French Streets, which was long afterwards known as the "McConkey House." The first court was held by Judge Jesse Moore.

Previous to the war of 1812-14, there were on Lake Erie but about ten or a dozen merchant vessels, averaging about 60 tons each. Salt from Salina was the principal freight west. The first vessel built at Erie was the Good Intent, of 30 tons, by Capt. Wm. Lee, in 1799, at the mouth of Mill Creek. Rufus S. Reed was part owner. This vessel was lost at Port Abino with all on board, in 1806. The Hurlequin was built in 1800, and lost, the first season, with all on board. In 1805, Thos. Wilson built the schooner Mary, of one hundred tons. After several changes in ownership, she was purchased by the Government after the breaking out of the war.

The first steamboat on the lake was the Walk-in-the-Water, of three hundred tons, launched at Black Rock, May 28, 1818; and the first one launched at Erie was the William Penn, of two hundred tons, May 18th, 1826. She was the sixth steamboat on the lake and was built by the Erie and Chautauqua Steamboat Company.

In the spring and summer of 1812, Com. Perry's fleet was built and fitted out at Erie. Lake commerce was interrupted, but the town prospered, for soldiers and marines were quartered there and many of them spent their earnings soon as received. The news of Perry's victory, which gave the supremacy of the lakes to the Americans, was hailed with joy at Erie. A block house was erected on Garrison Hill, and another on the point of the Peninsula, in the winter of 1813-14. Commerce soon revived and mercantile transactions were enlarged. In 1818 the first lighthouse on the lakes was erected here. The growth of the town has, until the past twelve or fifteen years, been slow but healthy.

The Erie Canal was completed and the first canal boat came through to Erie, Dec. 5, 1844. The Erie and North East Railroad, six foot gauge, was completed to the State line and the first train came into the city Jan. 10th, 1852. The Franklin Canal Company constructed a road to the Ohio line, and a connection through to Cleveland was effected in November of the same year. The Erie and North East Road had adopted the gauge of the New York and Erie Railroad—according to an agreement with the Dunkirk and State Line Railroad—so that the New York and Erie cars could run directly through to Erie, thus giving that great line an advantage over its rival, the New York Central, which had a narrow gauge. This led to a sharp controversy, and proposals were made for a new road to run parallel with the other, to connect with the Buffalo and State Line Railroad. Finally a compromise was effected to the end that neither road should have the advantage over the other, and the road constructed west from Erie to Cleveland adopted the four foot ten inch gauge, thereby compelling two transfers of freight and passengers, one at Erie and another at the State line. In November 1853, the Erie and North East Company agreed to alter their gauge to four foot ten inches, thereby making a uniform gauge between Buffalo and Cleveland. The attempted changing of the gauge of this road inaugurated what was widely known as the Railroad War, which was waged ruthlessly for nearly three years between the people and the railroad companies. The Civil Courts finally adjudicated the matter, peace was restored, the grade was changed, and the city once again became prosperous. Freight was forwarded expeditiously and travelers passed on without cursing Erie. In 1864 the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad was completed. The Pennsylvania Petroleum Railway, now under construction, will open a new avenue to the oil regions and add to the prosperity of the city.

The city embraces an area of three miles in length along the lake, by about two in width, and is divided into six wards, and crossed at right angles by ninety-nine streets. It lies on a bluff overlooking the lake and Presqu'ile Bay, and the surface is level or gently undulating.

The City Government is administered by the Mayor and members of the Council and their appointed officers. The Fire Department is under the control of Chief Engineer James S. Irwin, President of the Board of Engineers. Two steam fire engine companies, five hose companies and one hook and ladder company are the guardians of the city against attacks of the fire fiend. The City Water Works are managed by the Board of Water Commissioners. The city is lighted by the Erie Gas Company, whose capital is $135,000, and who have laid street mains to the length of fifteen miles.

The city contains twenty-eight churches, (2 Baptist, 4 Episcopal, 5 Methodist, 5 Presbyterian, 4 Lutheran, 1 Hebrew, 5 Roman Catholic, 1 Swedenborgian and 1 Universalist,) fourteen public schools in addition to the Erie Academy, (which was organized in 1817,) nine newspaper offices, four national banks, four savings banks, four flouring mills, twenty-five iron works, machine shops, &c., two large organ factories, one paper mill, ten planing mills, seven breweries and three malt houses, besides a large number of other important manufactories. The mercantile trade of the city is well conducted and there are many heavy firms engaged here.

The lake trade of the city is very heavy, several of the most extensive lines of steamers and sailing vessels being owned here. During the season of 1872, 114 foreign vessels and 2,278 coast-wise vessels entered and cleared from this port. The registered tonnage of the Port of Erie was, at the end of last year, 24,715⁸¹/₁₀₀.

Among the recent improvements of the city is the new Opera House, of which the Erie Morning Dispatch says :

"The seating capacity is 1,500 in parquette, parquette circle, dress circle and family circle, besides that of the eight boxes, which will seat 100 persons. All seats, except the upper gallery, are upholstered, and every seat commands a good view of the stage.

"The stage is 82 feet wide by 35 feet deep. It is supplied with sixteen full sets of scenery, with all necessary set scenes, the flats 12x18 feet, and five sets of 'panorama' grooves; four working traps, a Macbeth, a star and a vampire trap. Mr. E. D. Carver, of Buffalo, the noted stage architect, has had full charge of the stage department, and managers will find it perfect in every detail.

"The proscenium, beautifully ornamented and gilded, and surmounted with a large likeness of the Architect, Thomas Jackson, Esq., is 36 feet wide and 38 feet from top of arch. The drop curtain lifts straight instead of rolling.

"The stage is on a level with the street, and has street entrances. Beneath it are eight commodious dressing rooms, handsomely fitted up with all the modern conveniences: a large green room, music room, closets, wash rooms, etc., and has a stairway at either end, leading to the stage. The house is warmed by four hot air furnaces, and protected in case of fire by two water plugs, with hose laid ready for instant service. There are also entrances to the stage from every floor.

"The drop curtain and scenery is being painted by the scenic artist, Gaspar Mæder, of Chicago, formerly of Boston, L. B. Chevalier, our own talented artist, and lesser lights in the profession. From the portion completed, we think it will favorably compare with the best scene painting in the country.

"The ceiling is handsomely frescoed by Messrs. Bottani & Rusca, of Buffalo, and the fronts of the galleries are ornamented and gilded. A wide lobby from each side of the ticket office, and between the outer hall and the parquette circle, will prevent the noise of a crowd outside from disturbing those in the auditorium. At the front, there is also the manager's room and a ladies' toiletroom, with all necessary appurtenances.

"Alongside the hall entrance is the store of Smith & Kennedy, lessees of the Park Opera House, where reserved seat tickets for the entertainments will be sold.

"Taken as a whole, it is one of the finest Opera Houses in the United States; a theatre upon the level of the street, magnificently fitted up, and with the amplest stage room and most complete details in all that is requisite for a first-class Opera House."

The value of the building and ground is estimated at $130,000.

The Reed House, three times burned, has been rebuilt on a magnificent plan, and when fully completed will be an ornament to the city. The building has a frontage of 165 feet on the Park, and the same on French and Fifth Streets. Six stores occupy the first or ground floor, fronting on the Park. On the French Street side are the main entrance to the First National Bank, the private and ladies' entrance, reading room, sample room &c. The house is fitted with several large parlors, and 250 rooms for the use of guests, with accommodations for 500 to 1,000 persons. The floors are all reached by the grand stairway and by an elevator. The entire cost of the building will be about $150,000. It was designed by Messrs. Porter & Watkins, of this city.

The new Central Presbyterian Church, on Tenth and Sassafras Streets, now being built of Ogdensburg blue stone, with light Amherst trimmings, will, when completed, cost, including the parsonage, $80,000. The interior arrangements are so constructed that the various apartments can on occasion be thrown into one large room. The building will be an ornament to that part of the city.

P. A. Becker's new block, fronting on the Park, at the corner of French and Sixth Streets, commands a good deal of admiration. It is substantially built, 52 by 90 feet on the ground, and three stories high, with a fine basement and a Mansard roof. It was built at an expense of $40,000.

The Court House has been improved in a way that will be pleasing to the Court officers as well as to all who have business there. The pillars and all the ornamental work in the court room have been torn out, and the space in the rear of the Judge's bench has been made round like an arch, so that sound will resound back into the room better than it has heretofore. It is frescoed. The arch over the Judge's bench is made to represent the arch of the Union, with the keystone in the center, of course, directly below which is the coat of arms of the State, on one side of which is the State seal, and on the other the seal of the County. The design is very appropriate and will give general satisfaction, without doubt. A. J. Sterrett, Esq., Commissioners' Clerk, was the originator of it.

The Public Park at Sixth Street, and bounded on the west by Peach Street, on the east by French Street, and divided in the middle by State Street, is surrounded by stately business blocks and fine residences. The grounds are planted with beautiful shade trees, and hands me fountains ornament the center of either Park. In the West Park stands a monument, erected and completed in September 1873, in commemoration of the soldiers and sailors of Erie County who died in defense of their country. The following description is taken from the Erie Dispatch:—

"The monument in the West Park, erected by the voluntary contributions of the people of Erie County, in memory of our departed heroes, was completed on Saturday. It consists of a granite base, on the top of which stand bronze statues of a soldier and sailor united in defence of the flag. The soldier wears a regulation cap and overcoat, and with his right hand grasps the flag, while a rifle in the left trails along his side. The sailor wears the low cap, loose shirt and baggy trousers of the navy, his left foot presses a coil of rope, and both of his hands rest on a cutlass. Each figure is one and a half times the size of life, and they are quite fair representations of the two classes of our country's defenders in the late war. On the east and west side of the pedestal are inscriptions—the first stating the object of the monument, and the other being an extract from Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg. The monument cost about $10,000, and is the most showy for its purpose in the western part of the State. For this tribute to our dead soldiers we are indebted to the perseverance and patriotism of Mrs. Isaac Moorhead, Miss Helen Ball and Miss Eliza Reed. They have labored incessantly for a number of years to raise the needed amount, and deserve to have their services kindly remembered."

FAIRVIEW, situated in the northern part, is one of the original 16 townships comprising the County. It is bounded on the north by the lake, on the east by Mill Creek and McKean, on the south by Franklin and west by Girard. The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad passes through the north part, and Elk Creek crosses the south part, making a deep gully. The surface is level along the lake, the central part rolling, and the south part broken and hilly. The soil is generally a gravelly loam, the south part is clayey and well adapted to raising corn, wheat &c. The township is well watered by Walnut Creek, Trout Run, Brandy Run, Elk Creek and their tributaries.

The population of the township in 1870 was 2,157, of whom 1,772 were natives, 385 foreign, and all, except 3, white. Its area is 23,140 acres; its greatest length 8, and breadth 7 miles. The number of schools, as per report ending June 3d, 1872, was 14, employing 24 teachers. The number of children attending school was, males 340, females 282; the average attendance, 325, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year, $4,556.86.

FAIRVIEW, (p. v.) centrally located, was incorporated as a Borough in 1868, and contains an area of one mile square and a population estimated at six hundred. There are 3 general, 1 hardware and clothing, and 2 millinery stores, 5 blacksmiths, 4 shoe, 2 cabinet and 2 wagon shops, a hotel, 2 saloons, steam saw mill and brewery, 1 Methodist, 1 Presbyterian and 3 German churches.

There are three departments in the School, Primary, Intermediate and Academic. H. H. Clinton is the principal and has been for seven years. The average number of scholars is 125.

The borough also boasts of a good band, consisting of 10 members and organized in 1860. Elias Sturgeon is leader.

FAIRVIEW STATION (Avonia, p. o.) is a hamlet on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern R. R., containing a depot and grocery store.

MANCHESTER is a small settlement in the north-east part of the township, at the mouth of Walnut Creek, and contains a paper mill and a few dwellings.

"The Manchester Paper Mills" were established about 1815, changing from one firm to another several times. R. L. Perkins, one of the late proprietors, after several failures, becoming heavily involved, one of his creditors, G. Bliss, of Erie, took possession of the mill and has leased the same to J. H. Blakslee, for a term of years. The mill has been a failure generally, but under the successful management of Mr. Blakslee has been doing a good business, making from 2,000 to 3,000 bundles of wrapping paper per day. Gas from a well seven hundred feet in depth, furnishes light, day and night, and formerly furnished heat for running the engine.

SWANVILLE (p. o.) is a hamlet near Swan Station, on the L. S. & M. S. R. R., consisting of a number of dwellings, blacksmith shop &c. It was named after J. J. Swan, who erected the first frame house in the place and who came to Fairview township with his father about 1802.

Among the manufacturing interests of the township are the following:—

"The Walnut Creek Flouring Mill" was established during the first settlement of the County and is one of the oldest mill sites in this part of the State. Its location is on Walnut Creek, two miles east of Fairview borough and ten miles from the city of Erie. The present mill was erected in 1856 by Alexander Nicholson. It was taken possession of by its present proprietor, E. S. Belknap, in 1866. The original mill was erected by Mr. Guitner.

"S. V. Nason's Flouring Mill" is located on Baers Run, about half a mile south of the Lake Shore R. R. This mill was established at the early settlement of Fairview, by Daniel Baer; the present owner, S. V. Nason, has been in possession of the mill since 1864.

"Lock Haven Woolen Mills," on the shore of Lake Erie, was established in 1842 by Frank, A. J. and Miles W. Caughey, they building a saw mill the year prior to the woolen. They were connected with the woolen factory until 1850 and the saw mill till 1864. In 1864 or '5, a stock company was formed, consisting of John Thornton, A. J. Caughey, Frank Caughey, R. Pettet, D. Lang, Joseph Killheffer and Ambrose Dunn, who built a new factory. This company ran the same for two years and then rented it till 1872. Now unoccupied.

"The Fairview Steam Saw, Planing, Matching, Sash and Door Mill," located in the village of Fairview and owned by Weidler, Peffer & Kuhl, was built by Riman Shalcam, Noah Weidler and John Kuhl, in 1871.

The first woolen mill erected in Erie County was built by Samuel McCreary, who was also one of the first settlers on the lake shore of Fairview township. Coming from Little Britton, Lancaster Co., in the year 1800, he built the factory in 1815, buying the first carding machine in Pittsburg, paying for it $1,000 in hard money. It being a difficult question how he was to send his money, he at length concluded to put it in a keg, the ends of which he covered with beeswax. While transporting the same to Pittsburg by wagon, the horses becoming frightened, ran away, upsetting the wagon and throwing the keg out. The keg was rolled into a barn until the horses were caught. Mr. McCreary continued in the woolen business until about 1841; then two of his sons succeeded him, running the factory until 1848. The business was then merged into the firm of McCreary, Thornton & Co., who erected a new building near the old one and carried on the business until 1861. Then French and Keith, of Cleveland, bought the factory, running it two years, selling to Simons & Lutton, who, after running for one year, let it remain idle for a year, then selling to an Eastern firm, Waldo & Son, who run the same for three years and then removed the machinery. The building has since been unoccupied.

Among the first settlers of the township appears the name of John Dempsey, who moved from Dauphin Co. in 1798, and settled in Fairview township, where he lived till about 1823, thence moved to Girard, where he resided till his death, in 1850. His son, Richard, still occupies the old farm. John helped build the first grist mill in Erie County. William Haggerty, a native of Ireland, was a settler in the township in 1804, and his son, Cornelius, lived in Fairview until 1815, when he moved to Girard.

Jeremiah Sturgeon came from near Harrisburg in 1798, and worked for a Col. Foster that summer at Manchester; when out prospecting, he came to what is now called "Trout Run," which he followed up till he came to a place suiting him and where he determined to settle. He entered 400 acres at the Land Office and commenced clearing. Having a brother William in Pittsburg, he offered him one half of his land if he would move into the township with him. Meantime, borrowing William's oxen, and with a stock of provisions, he came to his land to prepare the same for crops. For three months he did not see a white person and but one Indian. His provisions failing, he was compelled to use part of his seed wheat. After getting in his crop he returned the oxen to his brother, who concluded to join him. Jeremiah then started on foot for Harrisburg, making the journey in eight days, removed his family, consisting of wife, three boys and three girls, in the year 1801, and settled in what was then known as "Sturgeonville," and now known as "Fairview Borough," where his son Robert is now living. Jeremiah died in 1817, and his brother William in 1838.

Richard Swan came from Dauphin Co., in the year 1802, and located in the north part of the township, in what is now called "Manchester." His son, Richard, jr., was four years old when they came, and is still living near the place where his father located. S. F. Gudtner came in 1802 from Franklin Co., and located on Walnut Creek in the central part of the township, building a saw and grist mill, (the grist mill is now owned by E. S. Belknap) occupying the same about 29 years, then he moved to Mill Creek, where he died, in 1850. John Caughey came about the year 1804, from Lancaster Co. He moved to Washington Co. during the war of 1812, returning to Erie Co. in 1822, locating between what is called the Ridge and Lake Roads, about a mile west of Fairview borough. (formerly Sturgeonville.) Johnston Eaton came from Franklin Co. in 1806 and located about one mile east of the borough. He organized the first church in the town, was the first pastor, and so continued for forty years; the denomination of the Church was Presbyterian. Mr. Eaton died in 1847, and his wife in 1872, having lived on the place located by him since 1806. Mr. Eaton has four sons, all living in and near the borough, viz., Johnston, John, William and Isaac. The old farm is occupied by Isaac. James Ryan was born in Dauphin Co. in 1777, and came to Fairview in 1809 with his family, living two years near Fairview borough, then settled in the south part of the township, where he died, in 1857. Samuel P. Allen, born in New England in 1775, came to Fairview township in 1823, and located 1,300 acres of land in Fairview and Franklin townships. Mr. Allen built a log house in the wilderness, about two miles south of Fairview borough, where the Christian Church now stands, the land occupied by the church being a gift from Mr. Allen. He remained in the township on his farm till his death, about the year 1858, and his body was placed in the cemetery connected with the Christian Church, which was given by him to the Church. Daniel Baer came about 1823 and located in the township where Nason's Mills, formerly Baer's or Fairview Mills, now stands, he building the same the first year of his settlement. After the first year Mr. Baer went to Pittsburg and married Leah Stotlar, returning to Fairview, where he remained until his death, in November 1863. He was born in Lancaster Co.

"The M. E. Evangelical Association," in the eastern part of Fairview township, was organized in the year 1800 by Rev. Mr. Albright, who was the first pastor. The present pastor is Rev. Henry Rhodes. The building for worship was erected in the year 1852. It will seat comfortably 200 people. The Church property is valued at $2,500.—[Information by Henry Rhodes.]

"The Fairview Presbyterian Church," at Fairview borough, was organized in 1806, with 25 members, by the Rev. Johnston Eaton, and the first Church edifice was erected about 1810. The Rev. Mr. Eaton continued in the pastorate for 40 years and his place is now occupied by the Rev. A. C. Junkin. The present church was built in 1868 at a cost of $11,000 and has a membership of 150. The building will seat about 260 persons, and the Church property is valued at $14,000.—[Information by Johnston Eaton.]

"The Fairview Methodist Episcopal Church," at Fairview borough, was organized in 1822, with a membership of 8, by Rev. Alfred Bronson. The present pastor is Rev. A. C. Tebbitts. The first Church edifice was erected in 1836. The second in 1854 at a cost of $600. It will seat 400 persons. The present membership is 60, and the value of the Church property is between $3,000 and $4,000.—[Information by Stephen Stuntz.]

"The Christian Church" is located about three miles south of Fairview borough and was organized in 1835 by Rev. Asel Fish, with 15 members. Rev. A. Fish was the first pastor, and Rev. Stephen Washburn is the present one. The first edifice for worship was erected about 1843 and is still used by the association. The present number of its members is 40, and the church will seat 400 persons. The original cost of the Church edifice was $1,000. The Church property is now valued at $3,000.—[Information by Jabez Luther.]

"The St. Jacob's Evangelical United Church," in Fairview township, one and one-half miles east of the borough, on the Ridge Road, was organized in 1852 or '3, with 20 families, under the pastorate of Rev. Michael Kuchler, who still continues to officiate. The Church edifice will seat 200, and cost $1,000. The present valuation of the Church property is $1,500.—[Information by Jacob Beckman.]

"The German Evangelical Church," at Fairview, was organized in 1870, with 30 members, by Rev. Joseph Vogel. The present pastor is Rev. H. Rhodes. The original cost of the Church edifice was $1,500, and it has at present 40 members. It will seat comfortably 200 people and the Church property is valued at $2,000.—[Information by Joseph Gensheimer.]

FRANKLIN was formed from parts of McKean, Washington, Fairview and Elk Creek, in 1844, and is bounded by the townships mentioned. It is fairly watered by Falls Run, Big and Little Elk Creek, and several other small streams, all having their source in the township, running through it in various directions. The soil is composed of clay, loam, sand and gravel, and in some parts of black mould, and is best adapted for grass, though some portions raise good wheat and other grains; but dairying and stock raising monopolize the industries of the township. There are considerable bodies of timber scattered over it, and three steam saw mills are fast preparing it for market. The first settlement was made about 1802 or '3, about which time the State opened an east and west road through the township, which is now known as the "Old State Road." It was done in order to induce settlers to locate, but the few that did settle, after enduring many hardships, abandoned their lands, and it was not until 30 years afterwards that many permanent settlements were made.

The population of the township in 1870 was 994, of whom 926 were native born and 68 foreign. The township is five miles square. The number of schools for the year ending June 3d, 1872, was 8, employing 15 teachers. The number of children attending school was, males 130, females 129; the average attendance, 181, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year, $1,142.73.

FRANKLIN CORNERS, (p. o.) near the center of the town, contains 14 dwelling houses, one store, one shoe, one blacksmith and one wagon shop, and one church. The settlement is a little more elevated than the surrounding country and is quite pleasantly situated. Among other things, it is the boast of the citizens, both of the village and the entire township, that a "grog shop" has never been established within its borders.

The manufacturing interests of the township are quite limited, the first saw mill built, being by David Russell and Robert Jones, on what was called "Falls Run," deriving its name undoubtedly from a fall of 40 feet in height, just below the mill. At the base of the falls a well has been drilled for oil, and around the neighborhood several wells have been sunk, but with no success, oil being found in limited quantities only.

"The Mohawk Steam Saw Mills," on the Crane Road, in the south-western part of the township, are owned by Proudfit & Tarbell. They also manufacture lath and shingles.

Among the first settlers was William Vorse, who came from Chantauqua Co., N. Y., and located in what is known as "Francis Settlement," in 1833, William and Levi Francis having settled there the year previous, (1832). It was then called "Elk Creek," but now belongs to Franklin. Alvin Francis came to the township in 1833, and his brother, Stephen, in 1834, from Essex Co., N. Y., with their father, who settled where they now reside, L. D. Rouse was born in Conn., and in 1829 came to the County of Erie, and has resided in this vicinity 41 years. Allen Mead was born in Saratoga Co. and came to this township in 1833. He had to cut his way through the forest for five miles, and suffered all sorts of hardships and deprivations during the first year. Andrew Proudfit came from York Co. in 1833, and made his way to the place where he now lives. He had two neighbors by the name of Goodel and Williams, who located one year prior. Thomas Spence was born in Ireland and came here in 1833. He suffered all the hardships of a pioneer's life. He built a small log cabin four or five feet high, in which he and his wife lived till he got in his first crop, when he built a comfortable house. Curtis Cole came from Unadilla, N. Y., with his father, in 1833, he being but 17 years of age, and has lived in the township most of the time since. Henry Howard was born in Grafton, Vt., and moved to the township in 1832. He claims that he is the first man who settled in the township, though quite a number came in the following year. George T. Howard came to the township with his father in 1840, and located on the farm of Michael Hets. He opened a stone quarry and has been and is now supplying the country around about him, it being the only quarry in the township. There are also three mineral springs, of good medicinal qualities, on the farm, one being iron, one sulphur and one sulphur and magnesia combined. Amos Milks was born in Rensselaer Co., N. Y., and came to the township in 1833, his father, Ezra, coming with him. They experienced all the toil and hardship incident to new settlers, but by perseverance and good health have succeeded in surrounding themselves with comparative luxuries, their farm and buildings being among the finest in the township. James B. Robinson was born in Pompey, N. Y., and came to the township in 1844, locating on the place where he now resides. Isaac Frye, born in Vermont, removed to the township in 1834 and cleared up and settled the land where he is now living. John Tuckey, a native of England, moved into this region about 1834. He was one of the first to commence the improvement of a farm at Franklin Corners, which was then an unbroken wilderness. He has been one of the prominent men of the town and has held many positions of responsibility. Orin G. Wood was one of the early settlers, and was an energetic, enterprising man, a mason by trade, and did much to improve Franklin Corners, most of the dwellings being his handy work. He was honored by many offices of trust and was much esteemed in private life. He died quite suddenly in 1873.

"The Union Methodist Episcopal Church," located at Franklin Corners, was organized in 1866, with 20 members, by Rev. C. L. Barnhart, who was its first pastor. Its present pastor is Rev. Mr. Lowe. The Church edifice was erected in 1868 at a cost of $1,500, and was built by all classes in the vicinity. It will seat 300 people. The present value of the Church property is $1,600.

"The Elk Creek Baptist Church" is located on the crossing of Crane and Population Roads, and was organized in 1866 with three members, Rev. William Develin being the first pastor, and Rev. Mr. Clark its present one. The Church edifice was erected in 1867, at a cost of $1,400. It has a membership at present of 35. It will seat 300 persons, and the Church property is valued at $1,400.

"The Eureka Methodist Episcopal Church" is located on the Crane Road and was organized in 1867, with 26 members, by Rev. George Elliott, who was its first pastor. The present pastor is Rev. C. L. Hollister. The Church building was erected in 1869 at a cost of $1,500. It has a seating capacity for 300 persons and is now valued at $1,500. The number of members are, as originally, 26.

"The Christian Church" located at Franklin Corners, was organized by Rev. H. R. Kendall, the present pastor, in 1872, with 70 members. There is no Church edifice, the Society worshipping in the Union Church. Its present membership is 68.

"The Lutheran Church" at Franklin Corners was organized in 1871 by Rev. Mr. Schaffer, with 10 members. He is still the pastor. They have no house of worship of their own, but use the Union Methodist, jointly with the others, they having contributed towards building the same.

GIRARD TOWNSHIP was set off from Springfield and Fairview, and organized in the year 1832. It derived its name from Stephen Girard, who had large tracts of land adjoining. It is one of the western townships lying on the shore of Lake Erie and is bounded on the north by the lake, on the east by Fairview and Franklin, on the south by Elk Creek and Conneaut, and on the west by Springfield. The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern R. R. passes through the northern part of the township, about a mile from the lake. The Pittsburg & Erie R. R. runs through the western portion, and the old Beaver & Erie Canal through the center, its general course being a trifle west of south. The township is well watered by Elk Creek and its tributaries, which passes through it from the south-east corner to the north-west, emptying into Lake Erie. Crooked Creek and numerous other small streams have their source in the township, passing through it in various directions. The surface in some portions is quite broken, particularly along the streams, and along Elk Creek there are a number of deep gulfs. The soil in the western part of the township is mostly sandy, and in the eastern part clay predominates. The principal crops raised are wheat, corn and potatoes, large quantities of which are shipped to market. There are the remains of an Indian fort between Girard and Springfield, and about two miles south of Girard p. o. there is an old Indian burying ground, situated on a high hill, from which several bodies have been taken. From a grave in this vicinity, some years ago, a thigh bone was exhumed which measured four inches longer than that of a man with which it was compared, who was six feet and two inches in height. Many arrowheads, pipes, pestles for pounding corn &c., &c., have been found, showing conclusively that this must have been one of the strongholds and hunting grounds of the Indians who roamed through this part of the State before the white man trod its soil. The greatest length of the township is six and a half, and greatest breadth, six miles.

It contained in 1870 a population of 2,722, of whom 2,433 were native, and 289 were foreign born, all excepting 7 being white. The number of schools, as per report ending June 3d, 1872, was 19, employing 29 teachers. The number of children attending was, males 396, females 331; the average attendance, 475, and the amount expended for school purposes, $6,955.36.

In the eastern part of Girard township, on Elk Creek, there is a singular ridge, known as the "Devil's Back Bone." It is about 75 feet in height, running up to a sharp peak, and is just wide enough for a person to walk upon. The name was probably given it by some of the earliest settlers.

GIRARD BOROUGH, (p. v.) located near the center of the township, was incorporated in 1846 and had a population in 1870 of 740. It contains several churches, a fine academy, a newspaper office, ("The Cosmopolite,") numerous manufactories and the requisite stores and shops for the population of the town and vicinity. There is also located here The Lake Erie Lodge, A. Y. M., No. 347, organized in 1864; present number of members about 70; holds regular meetings the first and third Wednesdays of each month. Also, Girard Chapter, H. R. A. Mason, No. 213, organized in 1867. The buildings and grounds of the citizens are quite tastefully arranged; the streets and walks are delightfully shaded by a variety of fine trees, making it a desirable place as a residence. The people are enterprising and the business of the borough thriving. It is the home of the famous showman, "Dan. Rice," who has perpetuated his memory by erecting a fine monument to the dead heroes of Erie Co. in the late civil war.

GIRARD DEPOT, (Miles Grove p. o.) a station on the Lake Shore & P. & E. Railroads, about one and a half miles from the borough, is quite a thriving, enterprising place. Mr. Denio has established his large handle shop here and will also remove the eastern branch of the business, now located at Baldwinsville, N. Y., at which the steel implements are made. This will increase the population of the place materially. There is considerable agitation among the people of this place and Girard, about the building of the Girard Passenger and Freight Horse R. R., which will doubtless be an accomplished fact.

WEST GIRARD, a small hamlet about one mile from the borough, has a number of dwelling houses, 2 churches, a mill &c.

LOCKPORT BOROUGH (Platea p. o.) was organized as a borough in 1870, is located in the southern part of the township and derives its name from the great number of locks that were in the old Beaver & Erie Canal. It has a population of about 500, and contains one church, two stores, a tannery, an oar factory, a steam saw mill, planing, sash and blind factory, a foundry, one harness, two blacksmith and one wagon shops.

The manufacturing interests of the township are numerous and prosperous.

"The Union Carriage Shop," situated in Girard borough, manufactures show and platform spring wagons on quite an extensive scale, and employs ten men most of the year.

"Girard Mills," owned by W. C. Culbertson, has a large capacity for flouring purposes and is doing a thriving business.

"Brandy Run Tannery," situated on Brandy Run Creek, about one and a half miles from Girard borough, has a capacity for tanning 3,500 hides per year, and is owned and run by S. Y. Rossiter.

"J. W. Cook & Co's Manufactory," located at Lockport, manufactures horse rakes, sash, doors and blinds, besides dealing in all sorts of dressed lumber. It was established in 1859 by James Leach and Isaac Brown.

"The Oar Factory of Rowley & Atkins," located at Lockport, was started by William Rowley in 1860. They manufacture about 100,000 feet of oars annually, and they are shipped to all the principal cities in the country.

"The Morehouse Foundry and Machine Shops," located at Lockport, were established in 1853 by Morehouse & Sherman. Mr. Morehouse has been sole proprietor since 1858. Castings of all kinds, and agricultural implements, are manufactured.

"Lockport Tannery" was built by William Aldrich about 1848. It has a capacity for tanning about 3,000 hides per year.

"The Shipman & Williams Saw Mill," situated in the north-east part of the township, has a capacity for cutting 800,000 feet of lumber per year, and about 40,000 feet of lath.

"The Woolen Factory of J. Thornton & Sons," situated on Spring Brook, two miles west of Girard, manufactures flannels and cashmeres, also fancy yarns. It employs about 12 hands, and has a fancy dyeing establishment connected with it.

"Hines Grapery," situated near Girard borough, contains 3 1-2 acres, set out in grapes, apples, pears, peaches and quinces.

"A. Battle's Fruit Farm," located about two miles east of Girard borough, contains one hundred acres, planted with different kinds of fruit, such as apples, peaches, pears, grapes &c.

The earliest settler in the township was Capt. Abraham Silverthorne. He was born in Fayette County and came into the township with his father, William, in 1798. The father died in 1813. Abraham resided in the township till 1840, and then moved to Conneaut township. He built the first mill in Erie County, in Springfield, since a portion of Girard. He was a lieutenant and acting captain in the war of 1812. Jacob Coffman and his son, Jacob Jr., were the next who came into the township. They came from Somerset County in 1801 and settled on the site of the present town of Lockport. The son bought a large tract of land and raised quite a family of children, on each of whom he settled a farm. He is still living, in Wisconsin, and is 83 years of age. About the same time Patrick Ward settled on the Lake Road in this township. He came from the southern part of the State. Robert Porter came into the township about 1800, from Westmoreland Co., and lived here till his death, in 1848. His son, George, was born here in 1811 and resides here still. Samuel McClellan and Wm. Crane, both came from Ireland and settled in the north-east part of the township in 1802. They cleared some of the first land and made the first roads in that part. James McClellan, son of Samuel, lives on the old farm. Daniel McClure was the first settler in the eastern part of the township. He moved in about 1800 and resided on the old place till his death. John Miller came from Fayette County in 1803, settling in the township, where he died. Isaac Miller came in and settled about 1800. James Miles settled at the mouth of Elk Creek at an early day, buying 1,600 acres of land, living here till his death, in 1869. His descendants are still living on the old farm. James Blair moved into the township from Fayette County in 1804, settled in the eastern part and lived there till he died, in 1855. Martin Taylor came from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., in 1813, and lived in the township till his death; his son, Martin, still lives on the old place. William Webber moved to this township in 1814. He came from Genesee Co., N. Y., and died in 1853; his son, N. G. Webber, still resides here. Abner Boder came from Connecticut in 1816, settled in the township and died here. Samuel Jenner came in 1816 from Vermont; his son, Peach, came with him and is still a resident of the township. Elijah Drury came into the township from Genesee Co., N. Y., in 1817; he says there were but three houses where Girard borough now stands, when he located. Nathan Sherman moved into the township from Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1818, and is still living here. Ethan Loveridge settled in the township, about one mile from Girard borough, in 1818, and still lives on the old farm. Titus Pettibone settled near Girard borough in 1832. He came from Wyoming Co., N. Y. George Traut came here from Columbia County in 1831 and has lived here ever since. William Kirkland says he settled in the south-east part of the township when it was a wilderness, in 1833; he cleared the farm where he now lives. Joel Bradish came from Saratoga Co., N. Y., and settled in the township in 1826, where he still lives. He claims to have driven the first wagon over the Lake Road. Cornelius Haggerty settled in the township in 1815. Justus Osborn came into the township with his son, Philip, in 1816, from Fredonia, N. Y. Philip says, the night before Buffalo, N. Y., was burned, he helped his father mould bullets. He has resided here ever since. Joseph Long settled in the township in 1825; he came here from Massachusetts. Mr. Long says there was no road along Elk Creek when he came here, and that James Laughlin, Daniel A. Clark and a Mr. Wolverton were among the first settlers at Girard borough; that one Joseph Wells was also there and owned most of the land on which the borough now stands. The first male white child born in the township of Girard, it is claimed, was John R. Ward.

"The First Methodist Episcopal Church," located at Girard borough, is the oldest in the township, and was organized in 1817 by the Rev. Ira Edey, with six members. He was the first pastor, and the present one is Rev. J. H. Herron, our informant. The first Church edifice was erected in 1828, and the present one in 1870, at a cost of $32,000. The present number of members is 169. The church will seat 500, and the present value of Church property is $35,000.

"The First Presbyterian Church of Girard," located in the borough, was organized in 1835 by Rev. Pierce Chamberlain, with about 40 members. The first pastor was Rev. R. S. Lockwood, and its present one is Rev. W. R. Moore. The Church building was erected in 1832, and will seat 300 persons. The present membership is 119. The present valuation of Church property is $10,000.—[Information by John Condit.

"The Fairplain Methodist Episcopal Church," located in the north-east part of the township, on the Lake Road, was organized in 1840 by the Rev. J. H. Whalon, with 13 members. GREENE was formed from Beaver Dam in 1840, and Summit was taken off in part from Greene in 1854. It is bounded on the north by Harbor Creek and Mill Creek, on the east by Greenfield and Venango, on the south by Waterford and on the west by Summit. Its greatest length is six and a half, and greatest breadth five and a half miles. The P. & E. Railroad runs through the south-west corner of the township. It is watered by several streams, the LeBoenf, the largest one, rising in the south-eastern part, running north nearly to the center, thence turning and winding till it passes out of the south-west corner. Four Mile Creek has its source near St. Boniface and runs north toward Lake Erie; the banks along this stream are very steep and abrupt. Six Mile Creek rises in the north-east corner and passes out in nearly the same direction. The surface of the township is quite uneven, but there are no very high hills. The soil for the greater part is clay loam, mixed with fine sand; about Lake Pleasant it is loam and gravel. The south-west portion, near the LeBoenf, is of a fine rich soil, easily cultivated and very productive.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,395, of whom 1,074 were native born, and 321 foreign, all of whom are white, excepting four, who are colored. The number of schools, as per report ending June 3d, 1872, was 8½, employing 17 teachers. The number of children attending was, males 184, females 131. The average attendance was 153, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year, $1,142.21.

WEST GREENE, (p. o.), a small hamlet in the western part, contains 9 dwellings, 2 blacksmith, 1 wagon and 1 shoe shop, 1 grocery, a cheese factory and 1 church (Methodist).

ST. BONIFACE is located in the north-western part, and appears to be settled by Roman Catholics, who have two churches, one German and the other Irish. There is also 1 grocery store, 1 blacksmith shop, 1 brewery building, and several other buildings that are now vacant, which were formerly used as shops of various kinds. The place seems to be falling into gradual decay.

The manufacturing interests of the township are prospering. At West Greene a cheese factory has been erected and a company formed to carry on the same, consisting of the following named citizens: Amos Erick, A. H. Yaples, C. A. Cutter, W. Yaples, Cleveland Ranell, John Fretuede, David Nash, John Myres, David Yaples and G. W. Beers. They propose doing an extensive business and will undoubtedly make a success of it. There are four saw mills in operation in the township, three of which are run by steam and one by water, and there is a grist mill to be erected this season by Miles Brown.

Among the first settlers of the township was a Mr. Brewster, who located on lots 363 and 385.

Jacob Brown was one of the oldest incomers of the town, and built the first saw and grist mills. He came from about the outlet of Cayuga Lake, in the State of New York, in about the year 1801 or '2. After erecting his grist mill, the stones for running it were lacking. On prospecting around he discovered some that he thought would do, but they were of a very singular character; their appearance was like a variety of pebbles, of all colors and sizes, cemented together in a solid rock. This he found in the neighborhood, and from which he made the two stones by drilling them out, a job which lasted many days. This mill was run till 1872 and then burned. Miles Brown is the owner of the site now.

Mr. John Phillip located in the township in about 1800. He came from Meadville and had to follow blazed trees to find his way in. Martin Hayes came from Conn. and located in the township about 1810. He says there were no public roads at the time, and the only way they could find their way about was by trails made by blazing trees, and cutting out the underbrush and logs. Roger Root was one of the pioneers, and settled about a mile from Martin Hayes. His son, Sidney Root, lives on the original farm cleared by his father. Thomas, John and Griffith Hinton came from Wales, Great Britain, at an early day, and settled in the north-east portion of the township, commonly called the Welch Settlement. Griffith Knoyle and Thomas Jones came about the same time. Peter Hinebaugh, Conrad Wineman, William Ellison and General John Phillip, came into the township at about the same period.

William Bunnell, John and Ambrose Coover, were in all probability among the earliest, if not the earliest, settlers in the township, they coming about the year 1794. The Coovers came from York Co. At that time the country was literally a "howling wilderness;" wild animals and Indians held possession and frequently made it rather "warm" for the pioneers. Mr. Bunnell was a famous hunter in those days, and on one occasion, while waiting for deer at a "lick," a large bear came in. Bunnell shot at him, and thinking discretion the better part of valor, started home for assistance. On returning with help and lights, they found the bear, with a broken back, lying in the "lick," with two cubs playing around her. They dispatched the trio and returned home triumphant. Bears seem to have been very troublesome, as they would prowl around the house, carrying off hogs &c., and spreading consternation through the household.

"The First Presbyterian Church" is located at East Greene, and was organized in 1849, with 11 members, by the Rev. George W. Cleveland, who was its first pastor. Its present one is William H. Adams. It has a membership of 53 persons. The Church edifice was erected in 1851 at a cost of $800, and will seat 300 people. The value of Church property at the present time is $2,000.—[Information by G. Knoyle.]

"St. Boniface Catholic Church," in the village of St. Boniface, was organized in 1857, by Rev. J. A. Oberhofer, our informant, who is its present pastor. It had at its organization 350 members. The first Church edifice was erected in 1857, and the present building in 1873, at a cost of $4,000. It now has 600 members, and the present valuation of the Church property is $10,000.

"The St. Paul Lutheran and Presbyterian Church" is located one mile east of St. Boniface, and was organized in 1857 with 22 members. Its present pastor is Rev. Charles Ernst. The Church edifice was erected in 1864, at a cost of $600. It has at present 32 members. The building will seat 125 people. The present value of Church property is $1,000.—[Information by Henry Zimmer.]

"The Lake Pleasant Church of United Brethern in Christ," located on the Lake Pleasant Road, near the lake, as its name indicates, was organized in 1871 by Rev. John A. Thomas, our informant, who is its present pastor, with 8 members. The Church building was erected in 1872, at a cost of $1,300, and has seating capacity for 200 persons. The present value of Church property is $1,500. There are 17 members.

"The St. Peters Catholic Church," located at St. Boniface, was organized with 30 members. The Church was erected in 1870 at a cost of $400. It has a seating capacity of 100 persons, and the property is valued at $100.

GREENFIELD is one of the eastern townships of the "Triangle," and is bounded on the north by North East, on the east by New York State, south by Venango, west by Harbor Creek and Greene. It was organized as a township in the year 1820. The first settlement was made in 1795 by Juda Colt, Joseph Shaddock and Henry Loomis, but the township was never fully settled until about 12 years ago. The southern part of the township is drained by French Creek and its tributaries flowing south, and the north part by numerous small creeks which flow into Lake Erie. The land is quite undulating and is exceedingly frosty in the spring and fall. The soil is clayey and not very productive. The inhabitants are principally engaged in farming and cutting wood for railroad purposes.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,039, of whom 946 were native and 93 foreign born. It has an area of 19,200 acres, and its greatest length is six, and greatest breadth five and a half miles. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 8½, employing 13 teachers. The number of children attending school was, males 80, females 87; the average attendance, 134, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year, $1,378.23.

GREENFIELD (p. o.) is a small hamlet near the west branch of French Creek, in the southern part of the township, and is the only settlement in the township of any size.

The first mill was erected in 1824, on French Creek, in the southern part of the township, by John Whitesides. There is also a cheese factory in operation at a place known as "Raymonds Mills," or "Little Hope," put up this year. The first marriage in the town was that of Joseph Shaddock to Betsey Williard, and the first birth was that of Ira Shaddock. The first death was in 1806, being that of William Scott. There has been no marked improvement in the last few years in the township.

The early settlers had a pretty severe time of it, and it was a hard struggle for them to make both ends meet, the soil being so cold and sour that it required a good deal of cultivation before yielding a fair living to its occupants, and means of getting provisions into the township were not sufficient for the inhabitants. It is related of one family that they had to go without salt all winter for want of transportation of the commodity from Pittsburg.

"The Methodist Episcopal Church" is located at Little Hope and was organized in 1836 by Rev. David Berton, with 30 members. Its present pastor is Rev. A. Bashline. The Church edifice was erected in 1851 at a cost of $1,000, and will seat 250 persons. There are at present 65 members. The Church property is valued at $3,000.

"The Greenfield Free Will Baptist Church" is located at Greenfield and was organized in 1861 by B. L. Fanner, L. Rexford and C. Burch, with 10 members, their pastor being the Rev. C. Burch. The present membership is 30. They have as yet no Church edifice.

HARBOR CREEK was one of the original townships of Erie and was organized about 1805. It is bordering on Lake Erie and has an area of 23,860 acres. The Michigan Southern & Lake Shore R. R. runs through the northern portion. The soil along the lake shore is a gravelly loam. Back from the lake about three miles its surface is broken and hilly, and clay predominates, and is better adapted to grazing purposes than raising grain. The chief productions of the town are wheat, corn, oats, barley and potatoes; large quantities of all the enumerated cereals are shipped to market annually. Grape culture is also carried on to some extent along the lake shore. The principal streams are Twelve Mile, Six Mile and Four Mile Creeks, also Scotts Run. These streams run in a northerly direction across the township, emptying into Lake Erie.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,974, of whom 1,682 were native and 292 foreign born, and all, excepting 23, white. The number of schools for the year ending June 3d, 1872, was 13, employing 16 teachers. The number of children attending was, males 331, and females 285; the average attendance, 576, and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,997.22.

HARBOR CREEK (p. o.) is a small hamlet and station located on the L. S. & M. S. R. R. It contains 2 stores, 2 churches, 1 blacksmith shop, 1 wagon shop, 1 shoe shop and 1 hotel.

WESLEYVILLE (p. o.) is a small place near the western part of the township, is located on the main road known as the "Buffalo Road," and is about one and a half miles from the lake. It was formerly quite a business point, but its close proximity to Erie city has drained it of most of its enterprise and business. The place contains 2 stores, 2 steam fruit canning establishments, 2 blacksmith shops, 1 church (M. E.), and a flouring mill. The L. S. & M. S. R. R. runs within about 100 rods of the town, and a depot is about to be erected for the accommodation of the inhabitants.

MOORHEADVILLE (p. o.) is a small hamlet in the north-east part and was first settled by James Morehead.

"The Steam Mill of E. J. & T. M. Dodge," near Harbor Creek, is a large one and has a manufacturing capacity for 100,000 broom handles and 200,000 shingles annually. It was erected in the spring of 1870. The fuel used for making steam is gas from a well about 100 rods from the factory; they use it for lighting and heating their dwellings also. The well which supplies the gas was sunk about 600 feet, when a strong vein of gas was struck which has thus been utilized. There are several other gas wells through the township of similar character and used for like purposes.

"The Flouring Mill of W. Cooper," on Four Mile Creek, was built in 1853 and has a capacity for grinding about 250 bushels of wheat and corn a day. It has three runs of stones. Mr. Cooper is about erecting a saw mill near the grist mill, and will run them both by steam.

"The Steam Canning Establishment of William P. Trimble" is located at Wesleyville. Mr. Trimble is the originator of canning fruits by steam, and has one of the largest canning establishments in the country. The principal articles canned are tomatoes and pumpkins.

"The Woolen Factory of J. Cass" is located in the south-eastern part and manufactures about 7,000 yards of cloth annually, consisting of heavy cloths, flannels, shirtings &c., mostly manufactured wool for the farmers of the surrounding country as custom work.

"The Keystone Grist Mill," located on Twelve Mile Creek, about a mile from Moorheadville, was first built by Captain Dobbins, about the year 1800. It has three runs of stones and a grinding capacity of about 50 bushels per day. It is now owned by Mr. Strong. This mill was the first one built in the township of Harbor Creek.

The first pioneer that came into the township was Amasa Prindle. He came from Litchfield, Conn., and settled in Harbor Creek in 1797. About the same time came Andrew Elliott, from Northumberland Co. He claims to have lived at Harbor Creek nearly two years before any one else settled in the township. They suffered many of the hardships incidental to pioneer life. In 1798 Josiah Backus came into the township and settled upon a 400 acre tract. He came from Washington Co., N. Y. In 1799, Sarah Prindle, the first child in the township, was born, and in 1801, William Clark, the first male child, was born. James Moorhead came from Lancaster County and settled in what is now known as "Moorheadville." His brother, Thomas, came with him in the year 1800. They both brought their families and household goods with them, and their descendants are living in the neighborhood where their parents first settled. Thomas Bonnell came from Lycoming County in 1801 and located in the township, passing through all the usual hardships incidental to pioneer life.

"The First Presbyterian Church" is located in Harbor Creek and was organized by Rev. Giles Doolittle in 1832 with 58 members. The first pastor was Rev. William Adair, and the present one is Rev. G. M. Cleveland, our informant. The first Church edifice was erected in 1834, and the present house of worship in 1871, at a cost of $10,000, and has a seating capacity for 300 persons. The present valuation of the Church property is $10,800. The present membership is 78.

"The Church of United Brethren" is located in Harbor Creek and was organized in 1856 by the Rev. John W. Clark with eight members, he being its first pastor. Its present pastor is Rev. John Thomas. The Church edifice was erected in 1856, costing $750, and having a seating capacity of 200 persons. The Church property is valued at $1,200. The society has at present eight members.

LE BOEUF was one of the original sixteen townships of the County, and evidently takes its name from the River LeBoeuf, which was the name given a small stream in the County, by the French, at an early period. The township is one of the southern tier of the County and is bounded on the north by Waterford, on the east by Union, on the south by Crawford County, and west by Washington township. It is watered by French Creek and its tributaries, which flows in a south-westerly direction through the township. The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. crosses the township in the same general direction, and the Philadelphia & Erie crosses the north-eastern portion. The surface of the township is undulating, and the soil variable and very productive. Some of the finest land in the County appears to be on the Moravian Flats and along French Creek. The principal occupation of the inhabitants is farming, grain raising and dairying.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,748, of whom 1,660 were natives and 88 foreign born, and all, except 6, whites. It has an area of 25,600 acres. Its greatest length is eight, and greatest breadth, five miles. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 11½, employing 18 teachers. The number of children attending school was, males 298, females 264. The average attendance was 490, and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,577.59.

LEBOEUF (p. o.) is a small hamlet in the north-east part of the township, near the P. & E. R. R.

OAK GROVE (p. o.) is a hamlet located on one of the tributaries of French Creek, and near the line of the A. & G. W. R. R.

EDENVILLE (p. o.) is a small hamlet in the south-eastern part.

MILL VILLAGE, (p. v.), a station on the A. & G. W. R. R., near the center of the township, was incorporated as a borough in 1870, has a population of 500 and is quite a thriving place. It contains 2 dry goods houses, 1 drug store, 1 hardware and 1 grocery store, 1 millinery shop, 1 sash and blind manufactory employing 7 men and capable of producing $2,000 worth of finished work per month, 1 shingle mill, 1 carriage and 1 boot and shoe shop, a cheese factory, 3 blacksmith shops, 2 churches, 1 school building and a hotel.

The Farmer's Joint Stock Insurance Company is located here, with a capital of $1,000,000. This is the only stock company in the State whose risks are restricted by its charter to farm property and detached dwellings.

"H. B. Crane's Cheese Factory," located in Mill Village, was built in 1870. It uses the milk of 300 cows, and in 1872 manufactured nearly 10,000 pounds of butter and 69,000 pounds of cheese.

"The LeBoeuf Stone Quarry," situated in the north part, near the A. & G. W. R. R., is composed of blue sandstone and employs from ten to fifteen men. The stones are used in all the adjoining townships, and large quantities shipped to Erie City.

The first settlers in the township we have an account of were Robert King, and Elizabeth, his wife, Thomas Ford, and Hopeful, his wife, and William and Thomas Black, who all located in the northern part, near French Creek, between the years 1790 and '95. It is impossible to tell which one built the first house, but it is supposed that Robert King did, near what is called "Fords Bridge."

John R. Black was born in the township of Waterford, near the old fort, in 1795, the year after Wayne defeated the Indians. He, with his father, William, moved into the township of LeBoeuf when less than a year of age and has lived here ever since. His father moved to the place now occupied by John Allen, and his house was built by a detachment of Captain Martin's soldiers from Waterford Fort. William Black was originally from Ireland.—[Information by John R. Black, who is now living, blind and very feeble.

Francis Isherwood, a sea captain, came into the township in 1796 or '97, from Lycoming County, and settled in the south-western part, near French Creek. He brought two of his children, a boy and a girl, with him, leaving his wife in Lycoming County. In the winter, business calling him back to Lycoming, he left the two children in the wilderness, (to keep his claim good,) surrounded by Indians, who, though not generally hostile, were very troublesome, from the fact that they were continually begging from the whites. He was detained longer than expected, and the children, through continually giving to the Indians, were reduced nearly to starvation, subsisting for weeks upon only a turnip per day until the father's return, who packed a sack of flour on horseback from Lycoming County.

"Edenville Methodist Episcopal Church," located at Edenville, was organized in 1855 by Rev. Mr. Mizner, with 30 members; he was also the first pastor. The present one is Rev. Mr. Blaisdell. Its first pastor was Elder Barnhart, and its present one is Rev. J. W. Blaisdell. The edifice will seat 500 people, and the Church property is valued at $3,500.

"The First Presbyterian Church," located at Mill Village, was organized in 1870 by Rev. J. M. Gillett, with 20 members. The Church edifice was erected in 1872, costing $2,800. The present number of members is 30. The building will seat 400 persons, and the property is valued at $3,000. The society has no pastor at present, as the building is not completed.—[Information by Wm. H. Gillespie.

MCKEAN, one of the original sixteen townships of Erie County, has an area of 32,280 acres, its greatest length being seven and a half, and greatest breadth seven miles. The township of Summit was in part taken from McKean in 1854, and Franklin in 1844, leaving the township boundaries in a peculiar shape. It is bounded on the north in part by Fairview, Mill Creek and Summit, on the east by Summit and Waterford, on the south by Washington and Franklin, on the west by Franklin and Fairview. The old State line passes through the township at about its center. It is watered by Elk Creek and its tributaries, which crosses near the center and runs nearly east and west. The surface is broken and hilly, and the soil principally clay, with occasionally a little gravelly loam, and is better suited for grazing than grain growing. The inhabitants are generally engaged in dairying, and the principal grain raised is oats, corn, wheat and some barley.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,552, of whom 1,259 were native and 293 foreign born. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 14, employing 21 teachers. The number of children attending school was, males 266, females 216; the average attendance, 309, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year, $2,507.79.

MIDDLEBORO, (McKean p. o.) located in the central part, was incorporated in 1861, and has an area of 242 acres and 2 perches, with a population of 125 persons. It contains a shovel handle factory, 2 stores, a drug store, 2 wagon and 2 blacksmith shops, a cooper shop, 1 M. E. church and 1 hotel.

STERRETTANIA (p. o.) is a small hamlet in the west part, and contains a grist mill, 2 small tanneries, 1 wagon, 1 blacksmith and 1 shoe shop, 2 groceries and a few dwellings.

"Sterrettania Flouring Mill," located at Sterrettania, was built in 1839 by David Sterrett. It is now owned by Dietly & Barron. Connected with the grist mill is a saw mill.

"Chisholm's Tannery," situated about one mile east of Sterrettania, was established in 1864, in a building formerly used as a woolen factory. It is tanning harness leather, calf skins and upper leather.

"Sterrettania Tannery" was built by William Potter about 1843, and is now owned by Joseph Long, who is doing a paying business.

"Charles Rappold's Tannery," at Sterrettania, was built in 1858 and is engaged in tanning calf skins principally, using about 600 calf and 100 other hides yearly.

"Simon Rohrer's Tannery," built in 1839, in the north part, is engaged in tanning woodchucks' hides mostly.

"The Lamson Shovel Handle Factory," located at Middleboro, was established in 1861 by Francis Lamson. The factory was burned in 1868 and rebuilt the same year, by A. H. Lamson, the present owner. He employs 13 men manufacturing shovel handles and shingles, of which large quantities are manufactured yearly.

The earliest settler in the township was Lemuel Stancliff, who came from Hartford, Ct., in 1799, locating near Middleboro. He built one of the first saw mills in the township, near where he located.

Oliver Dunn, one of the early pioneers, came from Ireland into the east part of McKean in about 1800. He claims to have built the first saw mill on Elk Creek, in 1809. The country was an entire wilderness, covered with beach and maple. He remained on his place till his death, in 1836. He had to go to Pittsburg for his flour and pack it all in on oxen, there being no mills in the township. Mr. Dunn also built about the third frame barn in the township, in 1816, and the same barn is yet standing. Thomas Dunn came into the township with his father, Oliver, and lived on part of the old farm till his death, in 1854.

Benjamin Grant and A. M. Cook came into the township together, with their families, in 1800, from Connecticut. They settled in the eastern part. Mr. Grant was a blacksmith by trade, and part of the farm on which he settled is now owned by his grandson, J. I. Rockwell.

James Sterrett came to McKean from Cumberland County in 1807, with his family, seven sons and two daughters, and located in the western part, now Sterrettania, his brother, Robert, coming three years before him, cutting his road through from Pittsburg. James Sterrett built a saw mill near his place in 1812. He died in 1830. David Sterrett, a son of James, occupies the old homestead. He built a grist mill in 1839 and a saw mill in 1838. He died in 1866. William Sterrett came at an early day from Fayette County, located near Sterrettania, remained for a few years and then removed to Mill Creek township, where he died, in 1817.

Benjamin Collom, born in Philadelphia in 1788, came in 1810 and located at what was known as "McKeans Corners," now "Middleboro," there being but one log house there. He built the first frame house in the place and lived in it for five years. He was a soldier in the war of 1812 and is still living in the township. Joseph S. Buck moved in from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., in 1819, and lived there till 1853, when he moved to Girard. Thomas McLaughlin came into the township in 1827 and located in the western part, where he still lives, and has been a public officer of the township for many years.

"The Methodist Episcopal Church," located at Middleboro, was organized in 1819 by Rev. Russell Stancliff, with four members. The first pastors were the Revs. Brunson and Green; the present one is Rev. J. O. Osborn. The first Church edifice was erected in 1837, costing about $1,200; and the present one in 1869, costing about $1,800. It will seat 350 persons. The present number of members is 31. The present valuation of Church property is $4,000.—[Information by A. M. Vorse.]

"The Roman Catholic Church," located two miles north of Middleboro, was organized about 1833. Its pastor is Rev. Anton Oberhofer. The Church edifice was erected about 1833, costing $1,300, and will seat 200 persons. The present number of members is 35.

"The Sterrettania Methodist Episcopal Church," situated in the village of that name, was organized in 1842. Its first pastor was Rev. J. O. Osborn. It has at present 27 members. The Church edifice was erected in 1842 at a cost of $700. It was built by the Presbyterians and Methodists, as a Union Church, but is now occupied by the Methodists. It will seat 250 people and the Church property is valued at $2,000.—[Information by Elias Brecht.]

There is a Methodist Episcopal Church Society on what is known as "South Hill." They hold their meetings in the school house, have 35 members and the Rev. J. O. Osborn is their pastor.

MILL CREEK is one of the original sixteen townships of Erie County and is bounded on the north by Lake Erie, on the east by Harbor Creek, on the south by Greene, Summit and McKean, and on the west by Fairview. It has an area of 29,650 acres, and one mile square taken from it for the city of Erie. This township was intended to be called "Harbor Creek," i. e. "the Creek of the Harbor," and the next township east "Mill Creek," but accidentally the names were misplaced. The first surveys made were made by and under the direction of Thomas Rees, the first State surveyor ever in the Co. Appointed in 1792, he made all surveys and lines to correspond with the lake shore and at right angles, which are north 63° east, and south 27° east. Three miles by eight, around the city of Erie, was called the "Erie State Reserve," and laid out into farms from 50 to 150 acres each, and the remainder of the township into tracts of 400 acres each. Erie City and Mill Creek have been identical in interests, and many of the first settlers were interested in both as to real estate. The township is finely watered by Mill Creek, Walnut Creek and their tributaries, together with several other small streams which flow north, emptying into Lake Erie. The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R. R. runs through the township east and west, about a mile from the lake. The Philadelphia & Erie R. R. runs through the eastern part, north and south, and the Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R. through the center, north and south. The French, in 1753, cut and grubbed a road across the country from Presque Isle to LeBoeuf, which was the first road in the township and county.

The population of the township in 1870 (exclusive of the city of Erie) was 2,744, of whom 2,080 were natives and 664 foreign born, and all, excepting 18, white. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 14, employing 14 teachers. The number of children attending was, males 276, females 222, and the average attendance, 445. The amount expended for school purposes during the year was $7,108.10.

BELLE VALLEY, (p. o.,) a small hamlet situated in the south-east part, contains 1 church, 1 carriage, 1 blacksmith and 1 cabinet shop, a saw mill and a few dwellings.

WEST MILL CREEK (p. o.) is a hamlet located in the western part, near the line of the L. S. & M. S. R. R.

The township of Mill Creek has been well supplied with both saw and grist mills since 1802. The first saw and grist mill was built by John Cochran, in 1800-1; the second by Robert McCulloch, in 1802, and all located on Mill Creek, south of Erie city, and now known as "Shattucks" and the "Erie Co. Mills."

The first settler in the township was Col. Seth Reed and family. They came from Worcester, Mass., and were the first white family that ever located in what is now called the "city of Erie." He afterwards bought lands on Walnut Creek, four miles from Erie, and removed there with his family, where he died, in 1798. He had been a colonel in the Revolutionary war and was in the battle of Bunker Hill. The next permanent settlers to the Reeds were David McNair, Benjamin Russell, Thomas P. Miller, John Grubb, George Moore, George and John Nicholson, and Jacob Weis. These men all came in and settled in 1796 and '97. A colored man, named Boe Bladen, came in 1796 and proved a good industrious citizen. George Reed and the McCrearys came from Lancaster Co. and located in West Mill Creek in 1801 and '2, and they and their families have been permanent residents. The Ebersoles, Riblets, Stoughs and Zucks, came from Lancaster Co. in 1802, '3 and '4.

The eastern part of Mill Creek was first settled by citizens of New England; the west from the old counties of Pennsylvania.

"The Westminster Presbyterian Church," located on West Mill Creek, was organized in 1808 by the Rev. Johnston Eaton, who was its first pastor, the present one being Rev. W. S. Wright. The first house of worship was erected in 1810, and the present one in 1851, costing $1,000, and will seat 200 persons. The number of members is 40. The Church property is valued at $5,000. SPRINGFIELD was one of the original townships in the County, and the first election for town officers was held in 1811. It lies on the shore of Lake Erie, by which it is bounded on the north, and on the east by Girard and Conneaut, on the south by Conneaut, and on the west by the State of Ohio. Girard was in part set off from Springfield in 1832. Springfield has an area of 24,320 acres. Its greatest length is eight, and greatest breadth six miles. The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R. R. passes through the northern part. It is well watered by Crooked and Racoon Creeks and their tributaries, which rise in the southern part, running north and emptying into Lake Erie. The Conneaut Creek runs the entire length of the southern border. The surface is rough and hilly. The soil along the lake shore is a deep, sandy loam. The chief products are grain, fruit and potatoes, and in the southern part dairying is carried on to some extent. There are three old mounds or forts in the township, evidently of the same series that extend all the way through the County from Erie city in a south-westerly direction; they are built near springs, but by whom has as yet never been ascertained, nor how long ago. When the township, was first settled these mounds or embankments had the largest of trees growing on them. There is also an old Indian fort between Girard and Springfield. Near a Mr. Gould's farm, in Springfield, some years since, quite a collection of arrows, axes &c., were found just below the surface, in the public road.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,742, of whom 1,665 were native and 77 foreign born, and all white, excepting 2. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 14, employing 22 teachers. The number of children attending was, males 200, females 188, and the average attendance, 273. The amount expended for school purposes was $2,459.63.

The first white male child born in the township was Joseph Brindle; and the first death was that of Henry Adams, who was killed by the falling of a tree in the fall of 1803.

There is also a large wagon shop, but it is unoccupied at present, and about a half a mile from the village there is a tannery. The Cemetery is located on the mound of an old fort; by whom the fort was erected is unknown.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, (p. o.) located in the western part, contains 3 churches, 2 stores, 1 tile yard and 2 blacksmith shops.

There are several saw and grist mills located on the different streams, which supply the inhabitants with pretty much all their needs. There is also at West Springfield the tile yard of Z. & R. R. Thomas, which was started in 1869, manufacturing all sizes of tiles for draining purposes &c.

One of the first school houses in the township was situated on the old Eagley estate. It was a log building with a floor made of split logs, hewed as smooth as possible. The chimney was built of stone and sticks, plastered with mud. The windows were cut from the sides, and greased paper pasted over the holes. The seats were of slabs, flat side up; for writing desks, holes were bored in the sides of the building, wooden pins driven in and rough boards placed across them. These were the only boards used in the building, excepting in the door, which was hung on wooden hinges; and, with the exception of the door, there was not a nail used in the building. One of the first school teachers in the township was John Fry.

Among the first settlers was Samuel Rea, who came from Ohio in 1804. He says that the first Presbyterian minister in Springfield was Rev. Johnson Eaton, and the first church was a small log structure, about half a mile north of East Springfield, where the cemetery now stands; and the first Methodist church was situated about one mile south of West Springfield, back in the woods. These two churches were both built about the same time. About the first settler was John Mershon. He came from New Jersey in 1796 and located where he now resides. He married Miss Brush in 1799, who at that time was a member of the M. E. Church. Through his influence the Rev. Joseph Bowen, of Franklin, was induced to come into the township and form a "circuit," calling it the "Erie Circuit," forming the first "Class" in West Springfield, consisting of five members. Mr. Mershon underwent all the toils and hardships incident to pioneer life. The first white child born in Springfield was Mary Mershon, his daughter. Robert McIntyre was born in Ireland and came in 1796, where he lived till his death, in 1867, at the mature age of 95. He brought the first potatoes that were planted in Springfield, from Pittsburg, on his back, a distance of 110 miles. There was not a house nearer than Erie the first summer of his coming. Samuel Holliday came from Franklin Co. in 1796, locating at the mouth of Crooked Creek. He claims to have built the first mill in the township, at that point. Thomas Dunn and his brother were born in Ireland and came in 1797, buying 40 acres of land, on which they lived about two years and then moved into McKean. Robert McKee came from Cumberland Co. and located in 1801. In the fall of 1802 Seth Reed agreed to get him a barrel of salt if he could get a yoke of oxen to draw it. Col. McNair, of Waterford, loaned them to him on condition that he would bring him a barrel also. Reed went to Buffalo, N. Y., and got them, bringing them as far as Erie city, and Mr. McKee had to go there and bring the salt home on pack horses. That barrel of salt cost him 50 Spanish dollars. Thos. R. Miller came from Franklin Co. in 1802, and located about three-fourths of a mile north of East Springfield. He was quite a prominent man in the township, being one of the members of the first Board of Poor Directors for the Co. of Erie, also the first member of the Legislature after Erie Co. was allowed two members. The first office he held was Co. Commissioner. John Miller was among the early settlers, coming from Washington Co. about 1800. John Law, born in Ireland, came in 1802. Mathias Brindle came from Franklin Co. in 1800, locating in the township, where he lived till his death. He had a family of 13 children. When he first settled here the nearest post office was Erie and the nearest grist mill at the mouth of Walnut Creek. The only road was on the beach of Lake Erie or a bridal path through the woods. The Indians were more numerous than the whites, and bears, wolves and deer were exceedingly troublesome. William Ferguson was born in Ohio and moved into the township in 1803, where he resided till 1847 and then removed to Conneaut. George Ferguson came from Cumberland Co. and located in Springfield about 1803. Abram Eagley came from Franklin Co. and settled in the township in 1803. William Gould came from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., settling in Springfield in 1815. He conceived the idea that salt abounded in his neighborhood, and in 1823 he commenced drilling for it. At a depth of 230 feet he found salt, but not in sufficient quantities to pay for working. Benjamin Carr moved in from Essex Co., N. Y., in 1816, where he resided till 1834 and then removed to Conneaut.

The present value of the Church property is $3,200.—[Information by Rev. A. L. Gleason.]

The building will seat comfortably 150 persons, and the Church property is valued at $3,000.—[Information by Lyman Smith.]

SUMMIT was formed from Greene and McKean in 1854, and is bounded on the north by Mill Creek, on the east by Greene, on the south by Waterford and McKean, on the west by McKean. Its greatest length is five, and greatest breadth four and a half miles. It is watered in the northern part by Walnut Creek and its tributaries, which flow towards Lake Erie, and in the southern part by a branch of LeBoeuf Creek and its tributaries, flowing south towards the Alleghany. The surface is moderately rolling, and the soil mostly clay loam, sand, and in some portions, gravel, and is generally free from stones and rocks, there being scarcely enough for cellar walls. The land is easily cultivated and quite productive. Wheat is not grown to any extent, but other grains are raised in sufficient quantities to supply the demands of the inhabitants. There is some dairying carried on by a few farmers. There are 4 churches in the township, 1 grocery store, a brewery, 1 post office, and a company is being formed to build a cheese factory. The Philadelphia & Erie R. R. passes through the eastern part, and the Petroleum R. R. through the north-west corner.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,047, of whom 802 were native and 245 foreign born. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, were 9, employing 9 teachers. WHITE CHURCH is a post office in the western part.

LANGDON STATION is a small hamlet on the P. & E. R. R., in the northern part.

JACKSON STATION is located in the southern part, on the P. & E. R. R.

About the earliest settler in the township was Oliver Dunn, an Irishman, who located in what is now Summit, in 1797, remaining but three years, then removing to McKean. Eli Webster came from Conn. and located in 1801. His son, Z. L. Webster, still occupies the land his father cleared, and has done most of the surveying for the township. John and Samuel Brown, Andrew, John and Jesse Coover, all came in and settled near each other about 1802. The Browns built two saw and one grist mills, the first ones in the township; Jesse Coover now owns one of the mills, and Miles Brown the other. Geo. Bunnell came in with the Browns. James Graham, born in Ireland, came to Summit in 1802, together with two brothers, Ebenezer and William. There was but one road near them, known as the "Old Grub Road," which led from Erie to Waterford, cut through by the French during the "French War." The old forts and block house were standing when they came. George W. Reed, Abijah Hull and Daniel Lee, all came in 1802, locating in different parts. Jonathan B. Rockwell came in 1814; he married Doshia Grant, whose father was one of the earliest settlers of McKean. Mr. Rockwell and his wife have lived in several of the surrounding townships, but are now located permanently in Summit. Nathan S. Stafford came from Clinton Co., N. Y., in 1818. His son-in-law, John C. Viet, now lives on the farm improved by Stafford. Samuel Gillispie was born in Ireland and came in 1837.

UNION. one of the original sixteen townships of the County, is bounded on the north by Amity, (which was set off from Union in 1826,) on the east by Wayne and Concord, on the south by Crawford County, and on the west by LeBoeuf. The Philadelphia & Erie and the Atlantic & Great Western R. R's pass through the center nearly parallel to each other and but a short distance apart, from east to west, and the Union & Titusville R. R., forming a junction at Union City with the two first named roads, thence running south to Titusville, distant 22 miles. The township is watered in main by the South Branch of French Creek and its tributaries. The soil is generally a heavy clay with an underlying strata of hard pan, excepting about 1,200 acres which was originally covered with pine timber and is a gravelly loam, underlaid with sand. There is little or no lime in the soil, but it is all more or less impregnated with iron. The timber was principally beach, maple, pine, hemlock, cucumber and whitewood, and a ridge runs through the south-west corner on which grows chestnut and oak. Union has had and still has some celebrity as a lumber district. Nine saw mills have done their work and gone to decay, and nine are now in active operation, besides three in the borough, which receive their logs from the township. Two or three oil springs were discovered on French Creek from which small quantities of oil were gathered 40 or 50 years ago.

The population of the township in 1870 was 2,834, of whom 2,435 were native and 399 foreign born, and all, except 7, white. The number of schools, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 18, employing 37 teachers. The number of children attending was, males 473, females 426, and the average attendance, 453. The amount expended for school purposes during the year was $6,324.12.

UNION CITY, (p. o.) formerly called Union Mills, was erected into a borough in 1863, and the name was changed to its present designation in 1871. It is situated at the junction of the Union & Titusville R. R. with the Philadelphia & Erie and Atlantic & Great Western Roads, and lies about the center of the township. The South Branch of French Creek, which flows through from east to west, affords one of the finest water privileges in the County. Union City is noted for being a manufacturing town, the population is increasing very fast, and in size and importance it ranks the third town in the County. There are two iron bridges, each 80 feet span, one on High and the other on Main Streets, costing together $6,000. Up to 1863 the place was of very slow growth; after that period it increased very rapidly, as it was the nearest railroad station to the oil regions. Most of the oil from Titusville was carted to this point for shipment east and west, making the borough a very important point, as it were by magic. The citizens of Union, like the rest of the world, could not resist the temptation of increasing their worldly substance, and, not to be outdone, put down a well in the east part of the borough, on land owned by P. G. Stranahan. The well was drilled by Mr. Frisbee in 1862. It produced some oil, but not in paying quantities, so it was abandoned. It is, however, a famous gas well, and from this sufficient escapes to light the borough, if only utilized. Union City contains 4 churches, 1 a Catholic to which a school is attached, 3 hotels, 2 hardware stores, 13 stores where dry goods, groceries &c., are sold, 1 variety store, 2 boot and shoe stores, 4 boot and shoe shops, 3 barber shops, 2 grist mills, 3 livery stables, 2 jewelry stores, 2 drug stores, 2 cigar manufactories, 1 tobacco and cigar store, 4 meat markets, 1 paint manufactory, 2 machine shops and iron works, 2 paint shops, opera house, Novelty Iron Works, 3 banks, 4 saw mills, 4 planing mills, 4 carriage and 4 blacksmith shops, insurance office, 2 artists, 2 photograph galleries, 1 establishment where pictures are enlarged and copied, 8 physicians, 1 newspaper office, (Union City Times.) marble shop, 4 milliner shops, 2 pump factories, 1 bakery, 2 places where lime, cement and plaster are sold, 1 silver cornet band, 1 furniture manufactory and 1 furniture store, 1 leather furnishing establishment, 1 tannery, 1 fish market, 1 sash, blind and door manufactory, 1 hide and leather store, 3 billiard rooms, 4 harness shops, 1 ready-made clothing store, 4 tailor shops, 1 oil refinery, 1 stave and heading factory, 1 laundry, 1 barrel factory, 1 carpenter shop and many other kinds of business of minor importance. Prior to the Local Option Laws coming into effect, there were several saloons, but the sale of intoxicating liquors is now prohibited in the borough.

"Evergreen Cemetery," now within the limits of the corporation, is noted for its beauty and the taste with which it is laid out. It is not only the burying place for the township and borough, but many come from adjoining townships to bury their dead. It was planned and laid out by David Wilson, an old county surveyor, who was the first president of the Company.

RILEY'S SIDING is a flag station on the P. & E. R. R., three miles east of Union City.

Among the earliest settlers of Union was Hugh Wilson, who came from Ireland and located in 1797, and died there in 1851. He held the office of Justice of the Peace for many years. His father, John Wilson, came in the following year, died in 1799, and was buried on a natural mound in the woods, where the tombstone is still standing, on which is inscribed his name and the date of his death. He was the first man buried in the township. Jacob Shepherd settled in Union in 1798, and after establishing his claim to a tract of land, went back near the Susquehanna River, where he lived till 1820, when he returned to Union, where he died in 1867. William Miles and William Cook were the first white settlers in the County, and their wives, who were sisters, were the first white women. They first settled in Concord, but in 1801 came to Union, where Mr. Miles erected a saw and grist mill, and the place was called after him, then changed to "Union Mills," afterwards to "Union City." It is bounded on the north by Greenfield, on the east by New York State, on the south by Amity and on the west by Greene, and lies about 20 miles south-east of Erie city. Lake Pleasant is a small body of water beautifully situated in the south-western part. The surface of the township is quite broken and hilly, the soil being a clay loam and well adapted to grazing. Its chief products are butter and cheese; corn, winter wheat and oats are raised abundantly, and the township will compete with any in the County for agricultural purposes.

Among the manufacturing interests of the township are

"The Sash, Blind and Door Manufactory of John S. Terry," located at Wattsburg. The machinery is run by steam, and connected with it is a planing mill, for his own as well as custom work. He also makes fancy brackets and scroll sawings of all descriptions.

"The Sash, Blind and Door Manufactory of John L. Lang," located at Wattsburg, together with a planing mill, is run by water power and does a nice business.

"The Shovel Handle Factory of Johnson, Hume & Gray," located at Wattsburg, is doing an extensive business manufacturing the "D" handle, and turns out about ten thousand dozen handles annually.

"The Shovel Handle Factory of Deamer & Baldwin" is located in Wattsburg. The "D" handle is also made here and the number turned out per year is about 15,000 dozen, which find a market principally in Philadelphia, although great numbers of them are shipped all over the country.

"L. S. Chapin's Grist Mill," located in Wattsburg, is one of the first that was built in the township, and has a capacity for grinding 200 bushels of grain per day. There is a saw mill connected with the same power, which cuts about 2,000 feet per day.

"The Phillippsville Cheese Factory," located at Phillippsville, is at present manufacturing some 19 cheeses, of 53 pounds each, per day, using the milk of 500 cows. The factory is fast gaining a reputation at home and abroad.

The first settler in Venango was Adam Reed. He came in 1797 and located on the East Branch of French Creek. His son, James Reed, came with him. He took up 400 acres of land and built the first grist mill in the township, which was run by horse power. His son, James, taught the first singing school in the township. Adam Reed's was the first death that occurred in the township, he dying in 1805. Burrill Tracy was born in Mass. and came to Venango, where he located, in 1797. He was a man of sterling worth and respected by all who knew him. William Allison and wife came from Northumberland Co. in 1798, and located near Pleasant Lake; his son, James, was then about three years old. After being in the township a short time, another child was born to them, which they named "Robert," and he was the first male child born in the township. The only means they had for obtaining the necessaries of life was by boiling black salts and packing them to market. John Phillip was an early settler, coming as early as 1798. He took up 1,100 acres of land in the western part, at what is known as "Phillip Corners." He was a Captain in the State militia, took an active part in the war of 1812 and was promoted to Colonel. After "Perry's victory" he was again promoted to Brigadier General. He has been in the Legislature four or five times, and was one of the most prominent men of the period. Timothy Butler came with his father from Ontario Co., N. Y., in 1826. They settled upon land still in his possession, about three miles west of Wattsburg. He brought the first load of dye stuff from Erie for Low & Co., who owned a clothes factory and carding machine at Lowville. David Bailey came from Onondaga Co., N. Y., in 1828, and located on Spaffords Run, about three miles east of Wattsburg. The country was then a howling wilderness. D. T. Bennett came from Delaware Co., N. Y., in 1829, and settled on the farm where he now resides. He has followed the practice of medicine for the past 30 years.

"The Middle Brook Church" was built about four miles north of the borough of Wattsburg, in 1801, and the Church was organized as early as 1802, by the Rev. Elisha McCurdy, with 18 members. The building was of logs and quite uncomfortable. In 1805 a new meeting house was built of hewn and split logs, and about 20 years after, the building was improved and made quite comfortable. It has since been abandoned and is fast going to decay. This was the first Church organized and built in Erie County.

on the north by McKean, on the east by Waterford and LeBoeuf, on the south by Crawford County, and on the west by Elk Creek and Franklin. The Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R. runs through it north and south, at about the center. It is well watered by Conneauttee Creek and its tributaries, and the beautiful little lake of Conneauttee lies within its borders. The surface of the township is rolling and in some parts hilly. The soil along the streams is well adapted to grain raising, and the hill portion to grazing.

The population of the township in 1870 was 2,744, of whom 2,581 were native and 163 foreign born. The number of schools in the township, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 20, employing 40 teachers. EDINBORO, (p. v.,) situated in the southern part, about two miles from the County line, is finely located on the borders of the Conneauttee Lake, which is about one mile long and half a mile wide. At this point the North-western State Normal School is located and is in a flourishing condition. It has a roll of from 250 to 300 students per term. There was an appropriation of $10,000 by the State to this school, which has been expended during the summer in making improvements upon the buildings, and the school now presents better inducements than ever. Prof. Cooper has been connected with the institution for the past 12 years and still continues as its Principal. The borough was organized and incorporated in 1840, and has a population of about 800. It contains 4 churches, 3 dry goods, 2 hardware and 3 grocery stores, 2 hotels, 2 drug stores, 1 clothing store, 2 photograph galleries, 2 wagon and several blacksmith shops, 1 pump factory, 1 tannery and a cheese factory.

MCLANE, (p. o.,) a small place in the north-western part, contains a few dwellings, shops &c.

Among the first settlers in the township were William, James, John, Andrew and Samuel Culbertson. They came from Williamsport in 1787 and located where Edinboro now stands, which was formerly called "Conneauttee." Each one of them cleared a farm. William Culbertson built the first grist mill in the township, in 1801, and the first saw mill, in 1804. The same year his wife died, being the first death. The first birth was that of Augustus Culbertson, in 1800, and the first marriage was that of Job Reeder and Nancy Campbell, in 1800. At an early day religious meetings were held in William Culbertson's grist mill. William also built the first log house, in 1807, and William Buckley taught the first school, which was located on the east side of Conneauttee Creek, in Edinboro. Jane Campbell, with six children, settled south of Edinboro in 1798. She came from Williamsport and most of the way on foot. She and her children took up over 1,000 acres of land and built several cabins on the same, keeping some of her children in them, so that she could hold it. They had a pretty hard time of it, having to get flour &c. from Pittsburg. Phinney McLanahan came in 1787 and settled in the western part, where some of his descendants are now living. Alexander and Mathew Hamilton came in 1787 and located near the center. Mathias Sipps came in 1787 and settled near the Waterford Road, not far from the central part. WATERFORD, one of the original 16 townships of Erie Co., has an area of 22,400 acres and is bounded on the north by Greene and Summit, on the east by Amity and Union, on the south by LeBoeuf and on the west by Washington and McKean. In 1872 a portion of Washington was annexed. It is watered by the West Branch of French Creek, LeBoeuf Creek, Trout Run and their tributaries, which run through in a southerly direction. The Philadelphia & Erie R. R. and the Pennsylvania Petroleum Road passes through parallel to each other and about the center of the township, north and south. LeBoeuf Lake is a beautiful little sheet of water, lying near its southern boundaries. The surface of the country is undulating, being quite hilly in some portions. The soil is well adapted to grazing and stock raising in the hilly parts, while the flats of LeBoeuf and French Creeks are well adapted for raising grain.

The first road opened in Erie Co. and through the township was built by the French, from Erie City to Waterford, in 1753; a part of the road is still in use.

The population of the township in 1870 was 2,674, of whom 2,392 were native and 282 foreign born, and all, excepting 10, white. The number of schools in the township, as per report for year ending June 3d, 1872, was 20, employing 3 male and 17 female teachers. The number of children attending was, males 370, females 294, and the average attendance, 479, at a cost of about 70 cents a month per scholar. WATERFORD BOROUGH (p. v.) was incorporated April 8th, 1833, and is situated on Lake LeBoeuf and LeBoeuf Creek. Waterford was laid out as early as 1795, by State Commissioners Gero, Irvine and Ellicott, somewhat after the plan of Philadelphia. The streets cross each other at right angles, and it is a singular fact that if High Street, the principal one in Waterford, was continued to the city of Erie, it would run into State Street in that city, and thus form one continuous avenue to Lake Erie. The borough has a population of about 800, and contains 4 churches, several stores, 2 hotels, 1 banking house, 2 wagon shops, 5 blacksmith shops, 2 tanneries, 1 firkin and tub manufactory and 1 wholesale and retail boot and shoe manufacturing establishment, and the inhabitants are thrifty and enterprising. We clip the following from a county paper:—

“Probably no other community in the county contributed more willingly and more largely to the ranks of the Union army than Waterford and the country in its vicinity. Few families in that section were without representatives in the army, and many, very many, mourn the loss of sons or brothers by the cruel fate of war. We are indebted to J. P. Vincent, Esq., Postmaster of the borough, for the following list of the fallen patriots:—

“Buried in the Cemetery—Capt. R. Cross, J. H. Smith, S. S. Himrod, J. W. Hunter, G. W. Benson, C. Graff, W. H. H. Skinner, L. Avery, T. M. Mitchell, P. Fretwell, R. Robertson, J. Atchison, M. Brink, J. H. Miller, J. McKinley, G. Kibbe, G. Cornish—17.

“Buried on the Field of Battle—J. A. Phenix, R. R. Smith, G. D. Judson, J. F. Rice, J. Lunger, W. B. Wright, A. C. Henry, F. M. Hull, A. B. Hull, R. Wilson, S. Demington, R. Middleton, I. Bowen, E. Sedgwick, L. Benson, R. Tollman, H. C. Brown, O. J. Taylor, J. H. Taylor, J. W. Babcock, S. W. Hare, M. D. Burrows, H. Porter, B. Hood, S. E. Fish, J. D. Fish, W. Phelps, J. J. Briggs, T. H. Briggs, C. Comer, A. Hough, L. Gray, D. Davis, E. Oldfield, Capt. A. Walker, J. V. Walker, P. Porter, O. Gray—38.

“From the same gentleman we obtain a list of soldiers in the Revolutionary War, and in the war of 1812, who are buried in the Waterford Cemetery:—

“Revolutionary soldiers—Neil McKay, Capt. J. Lytle—2.

“War of 1812—M. Himrod, H. Colt, Jas. McKay, J. Benson, J. Lenox—5.

“In the ‘old burying ground’ at Waterford is one who deserves especial mention—Michael Hare, who was born June 10, 1727, and died May 3, 1843, being 115 years, 8 months and 22 days old. He was in the French war, at Braddock’s defeat by the Indians, through the Revolutionary War, and marched with St. Clair and was scalped at his defeat by the Indians. Mr. Hare was of Irish birth, and he was well-known through the county in the good old times, forty and fifty years ago.”

“The Waterford Academy,” located in the borough, was erected in 1822, the State appropriating 500 acres of land for its benefit. Subsequently the land was sold and the money put out at interest for the use of the school. Many of the leading men of Erie County obtained their education here, and it has been a flourishing school.

“The Banking House of Benson & West,” located in Waterford borough was established in 1860. It is not a chartered bank.

“The Tannery of N. & W. C. Smith,” in Waterford borough, tans about 1,500 hides per year.

“The Tannery of Barnett Hayes & Co.” turns out 3,500 sides of leather and about 1,500 skins per year, employing eight hands.

“The Boot and Shoe Manufactory of Johnson & Willard” makes up about $3,500 worth of boots and shoes per year, employing 20 hands.

The first grist mill in the township was built by Robert Brotherton, and the first saw mill by James Boyd.

Martin Strong, the first white settler, came from Hartford Co., Conn., in 1795, and located in the north-west corner. He was a surveyor and brought his compass and chain in his knapsack, strapped on his back, and thus equipped, he walked the entire distance. He helped survey most of the land in the north-west part of the State. The nearest grist mill was at Meadville, 27 miles, where he carried his grain on his back to get it ground. He also kept the first public house. He lived on the farm on which he first settled, till his death, in 1805. He married Hannah Trask. The surface of the town is rolling and quite hilly, and the soil generally clay, with the exceptions of the "flats" along the several creeks, which are gravelly loam. There is a landmark of considerable note in the township, viz., a willow tree, standing opposite the farm house of Mathew Grays, in Beaver Dam. The Erie Chair Co., at Erie, are the manufacturers of the celebrated Nursery or Baby Chair, the merits of which are stated in their card on page 343. To all having the care of children it seems almost invaluable, combining, as it does, such a variety of expedients, which while they relieve the overburdened mother of the constant care of the child, at the same time serve to divert and amuse the little one and administer to its comfort. Indeed no one who has tried these chairs would be without one. Call and see them.

The Humboldt Savings Bank, Erie, Pa., is a reliable banking institution. Young men just starting in life will find it a profitable investment to deposit a portion of their earnings every week at this institution. Many a young man who spends his earnings carelessly, and sometimes foolishly, after making a trial of this system, will be pleasingly surprised at the rapidity with which his wealth accumulates. To such and others we can recommend the Humboldt Savings Bank as a substantial financial institution. They advertise on marginal lines.

Erie County Classified Business Directory.

The Townships are alphabetically arranged at the end of the line, under the business classifications. The post office address of each individual or firm follows immediately after the name. Where no post office is given after the name, it signifies that the name of the post office and the township is the same. The names of farmers are omitted in this list, as they can readily be found in the general list, by noting the figures at the end of the line, which indicate the number of acres owned or leased by each.

A. S. Pinney, Hardware dealer at 1223 Peach St., Erie, offers tempting inducements to the farmers and mechanics of Erie Co. He keeps a fine assortment of Hardware at reasonable prices. Carriage makers will here find what they need in the line of Hubs, Spokes, Felloes and Carriage Materials generally. He also keeps a good assortment of Carriages and Sleighs at very moderate rates. He advertises on page 134.

J. A. Nash, at Concord Station, Pa., publishes an advertisement on page 140. Mr. Nash is prepared to supply all orders for Pressed Hay and Straw, of the best quality, at short notice and reasonable rates.

Dr. J. E. Gerould, Dentist, at Erie, "shows his Teeth" on page 134. It is a representation, however, of the artificial kind, in the manufacture of which it is said he excels. The Dr. appreciates the duty of announcing his business in such a way that all may know where to go when a job in his line is required. He also has a branch office at Fairview.

C. Swalley, proprietor of the Presque Isle Spice Mills, 1012 State St., Erie, keeps one of the best assortments of Teas, Coffees, Spices &c. to be found in the city, for a more extended announcement of which, see his card on page 134. Wholesale and retail dealers will find it to their advantage to give him a call.

D. Weeks, Practical Gunsmith, 139 State St., Erie, publishes a card on page 180. He keeps a very fine assortment of Rifles, Shot Guns &c., constantly on hand. Sportsmen who desire to obtain a reliable fowling piece at a fair price, should call on Mr. W., who will not fail to suit them every time. Mr. W. is also Sealer of Weights and Measures for Erie Co.

N. C. Outwalt, Painter, Paper Hanger &c., 7th St., Erie, advertises on page 140. Mr. O. does all kinds of House and Sign Painting in good style and at short notice. He is also agent for Burnham's Weather Strip, for windows and doors, which are said to be unexcelled for keeping out cold.

The Cosmopolite, published at Girard, Pa., by Jacob Bender, furnishes the general and local news to a large portion of the citizens of Erie Co. The general appearance of the Cosmopolite is evidence that it is appreciated by the reading public. The Local Department is well sustained and the editorials show ability and good judgment. It is a large 36 column paper and we are glad to know has a large circulation. It is independent in politics. Their facilities for executing Job Printing are excellent and prices fair. Card on page 166.

Mehler & Tretter, dealers in Building Stone, publish a card on page 140. They have been in business about four years and are prepared to fill all orders for anything in their line on short notice and at reasonable rates. Their place of business is at the corner of State and 12th Streets, Erie.

F. F. Adams, manufacturer of Washing Machines, Step Ladders, Clothes Bars &c., 1105 State St., Erie, makes his bow on page 148. Those in need of any of the above useful articles cannot do better than call on Mr. A. All of his work is made in a substantial manner and gives good satisfaction.

Mme. Bidlack, Dress Maker, 26 Noble Block, Erie, prints a card on page 140. Those requiring her services will find her prompt and reliable in the execution of all orders. She also keeps a large variety of Patterns constantly on hand.

What are Crumbs of Comfort?

—Why, Crumb's Carbohc Ointment and Crumb's Carbohc Extract, two wonderful medicines prepared by the Niagara Pharmaceutical Co., at Westfield. It is an old saying that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," and so it is with these medicines; for the proprietors have found them so valuable in allaying pain and curing disease, that they freely offer trial packages of the medicine gratuitously. They "cast their bread upon the waters," &c. Read the advertisement on page 164, and then secure some of the medicine, is the best advice we can give.

J. Thornton & Sons are breeders of Pure Blooded Poultry, at Girard, Pa., of which they keep a large assortment of the different varieties. Fowl fanciers would do well to call and inspect their stock. Card on page 166.

A. Denio, proprietor Otsego Fork Mills, Girard, Pa., has lately removed his establishment from Albion, where it has been located for a good many years. It is unnecessary for us to say anything in commendation of the Otsego Forks, as their reputation has been long since firmly established, and with the increased facilities now afforded them, they will continue to turn out Forks, Hoes &c., in sufficient quantities to meet their increasing demand. Card on page 166.

John Arbuckle, Union City, Pa., Merchant Tailor, keeps a fine stock of Cloths of the most fashionable kinds, which he makes up to order in the best manner, and while he sells the best of goods, his prices are as low as any in the State for the same quality. If you want 'perfect fits,' Arbuckle can give 'em to you. See his portrait on page 260.
